Hoover and Curtis.
Prosperity—More of It.
Coolidge Knew It.
Safe at Fifty.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET, now complete, reads Hoover and Curtis. Senator Curtis from Kansas, whose genial, "Howdy, men," is known to thousands of friends, was nominated on the first ballot, with 1,052 votes.

THIS puts an out and out farmers' candidate on the ticket. It does not mean dissatisfaction with Gen. Dawes, for there is none.

The Curtis nomination is an effort to "do something for the farmer."

THE Republican slogan for this campaign is to be CONTINUED PROSPERITY—AND MORE OF IT.

That's enough of a slogan. People decline to think about more than one thing at a time. And when prosperity is the issue they don't want any other.

IF Democrats are wise they will promise "continued prosperity—with a great deal more of it than the Republicans ever dreamed of."

IN his fine telegram of congratulation to Herbert Hoover, President Coolidge expresses the thought of many citizens, "Your great ability and wide experience will enable you to serve our country with marked distinction."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE has known for months that Herbert Hoover would be nominated. The President, who has been a candidate for office twenty times and never defeated, understands politics. That is more than you can say for some gentlemen from New York state and elsewhere.

THE Metropolitan Life Insurance Company yesterday insured a man past 50 for $1,500,000. A few generations ago, when the second biggest city in France had no inhabitant over 50 years of age, such insuring would have been financially suicidal. Men live longer, intelligence counts. A wise man at 50 is a safer risk than a fool at 25. And the Metropolitan has promoted longer living by intelligent health advertising.

OUR prosperity is real. In May General Motors broke all records delivering 224,094 cars, the third successive record breaking month, as announced by President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr. The total sale of cars in May was more than 443,000.

Henry Ford is now turning out his new car at the rate of 3,000 a day. But there will be a shortage, in good makes.

This country needs 5,000,000 new cars every year at a minimum, even if the total number exceeds the present figures, 24,000,000. Get your car.

IN New York a young man, brought into court by his father, admitted that he had an income of $400 a week, and employed his father as hostler to take care of his saddle horses. His excuse was that the father had not led a moral life. The Japanese religion, that includes 20 different kinds of hell, probably would find one especially prepared for him that wouldn't include any saddle horses.

DELEGATES, according to H. L. Phillips, watch their steps in hotel lobbies. Several have cut their feet on fragments of broken gin bottles. When a delegate or welcoming friend lets the bottle slip out of the paper crossing the lobby, it breaks on the stone floor.

However, the Republican platform says "rigid enforcement of the prohibition law." So there is nothing to worry about.

FUNDAMENTALISTS will read this with joy, and hold it under the noses of doubting Modernists.

The Munson Liner Munamar caught a big tiger shark. Hauled on deck it expelled from its stomach and mouth a good sized turtle. The turtle is at this moment alive and swimming in New York's aquarium.

IF an inferior modern shark can swallow a big turtle and return it alive, why should not a huge fish, created especially for the purpose, swallow Jonah, take him ashore and release him less injured than he would have been by a ride in New York's crowded subway?

LEVEES BREAK, MANY PERILED

By International News Service.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., June 16.—Approximately 1,000 families were made homeless when the levee of the St. Francis River broke at Kennett, Mo., 35 miles southwest of here today.

The breaking of the levee caused the swollen St. Francis River to spread over a five-mile area, and threatened devastation to 25,000 acres of fertile land in Southwest Missouri.

Red Cross headquarters were being established at Kennett for relief of the flood sufferers. Approximately 150 families were reported in immediate need of assistance.

Five companies of National Guardsmen have been patrolling the river during the last week. Hundreds of citizens of Kennett and the surrounding territory fought a terrific battle all day yesterday and last night until the levee gave way.

The rise of the St. Francis was the second this week, and a third rise is expected by Tuesday.

It was believed here the river would go a foot and a half higher at the third crest, inundating other thousands of acres of land in the territory.

NEWPORT, Ark., June 16.—(AP.)—Nearly 600,000 acres in the White River Valley were flooded today and thousands more were being inundated gradually by water released last night when the Stevens levee near here broke.

More than 700 families were homeless, many being cared for by the Red Cross.

The levee collapsed while 300 men were working frantically to save it. The river had reached its crest and it was believed the greatest danger had passed when, without warning, the great embankment gave way. The laborers abandoned their equipment and fled, some of them narrowly escaping death.

Girl Fliers Held by Storms

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 16.—(AP.)—The two American air expeditions quartered in Newfoundland anxiously scanned weather reports today in the hope that conditions would warrant a takeoff for Europe before night.

They had little but hopes upon which to go, however. Dr. James H. Kimball, United States weather Bureau meteorologist at New York, had warned both Miss Amelia Earhart and Miss Mabel Boll, who are heading the two flights, that unfavorable conditions in mid-Atlantic might continue for several days.

Miss Earhart, her pilot, Wilmer Stultz, and Navigator Lou Gordon, have definitely decided to head their big plane, the Friendship, for Ireland when they take off from Trepassey, where they are waiting favorable weather.

Although the 75 gallons of gasoline they must add to insure a fuel supply sufficient to carry them that far will increase the weight of their

Autoists: When Bumping Into Trains, Take Care!

Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 16.

TONY STRABER'S warning to automobile owners is this:

When driving your car into a railroad train be careful not to damage the locomotive.

Tony's car and a Grand Trunk train were involved in an argument over the right of way at Western avenue near One Hundred and Fortieth street last November. The automobile wound up in a ditch in a status described by wreck writers as "twisted wreckage." Tony, unhurt, started to tell the engineer a few things, but the engineer got the conversational jump on him.

"Look where you're going," the engineer said, "and quit bumping into my engine. You haven't heard the last of this. I'm going to tell the manager."

Apparently he did. Yesterday Tony got a letter from the Grand Trunk Railroad. It made no mention of his automobile, confining itself to the following succinct sentence:

"Enclosed please find bill for $29.18 for damage to our locomotive, Number 6038."

A Tragedy

BETTY AUEN

They know what tragedy is at the Auen home, Meadowbrook boulevard, Brentwood. While her mother and grandmother lay ill in nearby rooms and her father was at the sickbed of his father-in-law, Betty Auen, 3, crawled up on a chair, reached into the kitchen cupboard and took a bottle containing a medicinal preparation—marked "deadly poison." Betty drank the contents. She died a few hours later.

HOOVER LEAVES STUMP CAMPAIGN TO CURTIS

By International News Service.

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—Senator Charles Curtis, selected as the Republican party's vice presidential candidate by a majority even more overwhelming than that accorded to his running mate, Herbert Hoover, probably will bear the brunt of the speaking campaign during the summer and fall.

Although as floor leader of the Senate the Kansan generally was as taciturn as his Indian ancestors, he can be an excellent "spellbinder" when he chooses. He is a forceful and convincing speaker on the stump.

HOOVER NO SPEAKER

The Republican leaders recognize the fact that Hoover, who is now a candidate for public office for the first time in his career, is not an effective speaker and most of the public speeches will be made by Curtis.

In a happy mood and surrounded by the members of his family, Curtis left for his home at Topeka immediately after the convention adjourned. It is there he will be notified formally of his nomination and it will be from there that the vocal part of the Republican campaign will be carried forward.

Before scattering for their homes, the great majority of the delegates expressed unqualified approval of the choice of Curtis as the running mate for the Secretary of Commerce. The landslide for the Kansas senator, a champion of the farmers, swept all rival candidates for Vice President before it and assured the nomination of Curtis before the convention met.

Supporters of the other candidates went through the motion of placing

NEW YORK, June 16.—Despite the fact that Manager Bush plans on putting George Grantham back into the regular lineup after a three-week absence due to an injury, the Pirates will face a terrific obstacle as they tie into the New York Giants in the third game of the series at the Polo Grounds this afternoon. The obstacle is Larry Benton, ace of the Giant mound staff and the league's leading hurler, who has completed every game started, a dozen in all, and won 10 of them.

The Pirates will perform behind the hurling of Remy Kremer, who seems to have regained his effectiveness. He looked very good in his win over the Phillies while the Bucs were in Philadelphia this week, and it is the hope of Bush that he will be able to turn back the McGrawmen today.

The return of Grantham, a .400 hitter, will add some potency to the Pirate attack, in addition to strengthening the defense.

The battle lasted almost an hour and saw much rapid firing in police efforts to drive the desperate fugitives from their underbrush entrenchments. The defenders called out "Enough" and when police approached they reopend with a vicious fire. "Limpy" was wounded and here police bear him off the field—the loser! MARATHON DANCERS TO TAKE TO BOATS

Dragging along in three local dance marathons, 72 couples were getting set for a continuation of their long grind on boats over the Sabbath.

At both the Academy Theater and Duquesne Garden it was stated the dancers would be transported to boats over Sunday, but at Motor Square, where the Negroes are staging their contest, it was undecided what would happen as midnight approached.

Four couples, who had put 207 hours behind them at noon in the Academy contest, were said to be showing no sign of retiring. Tonight the dancers board the Japanese Garden, pleasure boat.

Duquesne Garden had 53 couples still contesting after 64 hours of continuous locomotion at noon. Two dropped out during the early morning hours. Arrangements were being made, it was stated, to place the remaining contestants aboard the Julia Belle Swain tonight.

As the trip from Oakland to the boat could not be made within the 15-minute rest period, it was arranged to place the dancers in moving vans and keep them dancing to canned music.

Ten couples remained in the Negro marathon at Motor Square Garden at 12 o'clock today, 132 hours after they began their contest. The last

PAIR 'COVERS' 5, ROBS STORE

In a holdup at the J. H. Phillips drug store, 1400 Beaver avenue, early today two armed robbers backed W. D. Hanrahan, the manager, of 1123 Morrison avenue, and three customers to the rear of the place and escaped with $65 from the cash register. James White, of 1721 Gironde street, Negro employe, hesitated in raising his hands and was struck on the head with a revolver. His scalp was cut.

NOBILE RESCUE BY AIR FAILS

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, June 16.—Speedy rescue by air of Gen. Umberto Nobile and five men adrift with him on the ice which seemed today to be possible has been delayed.

The large twin motored Savoia-Marchetti flying boat, en route from Milan, left Vadsoe, Norway, at midnight for a 12-hour flight to Kings Bay, but early today was forced down at Varanger Fjord and is being towed back to Vadsoe. This is the first plane available which is judged to be of sufficient size to pick up the marooned men.

All Kings Bay preparations were made for the speedy departure of the plane to the castaways. Provisions, shoes, medicines, guns and collapsible rubber boats were ready to be stored aboard the plane for its flight of some 220 miles to the region north of Northeast Land, where Nobile and his men are stranded.

The flying boat has a radio and in its search can be guided by the base ship Citta di Milano, which has been in touch with Gen. Nobile by wireless. From Nobile the exact position of the castaways and ice conditions in the neighborhood, will be learned to aid the plane as it flies northward. Latest advices indicate that the northwest wind was opening up the ice field, making rescue by plane practicable.

It was estimated that within 10 hours Maj. Maddalena, the Italian aviator flying the huge seaplane, would be able to search over a wide area. It was, therefore, hoped that in addition to aiding the Nobile party he might locate two other groups of survivors of the Italia—the party of three who started afoot toward North Cape and the seven men who were carried to the east in the drifting airship.

The ice-breaker Braganza and the sealing ship Hobby were within sight of North Cape today and making their way through the ice floes as near as possible to Gen. Nobile's last reported position at 80.38 north, 27.49 east. The Norwegian seaplanes piloted by Capt. Riiser-Larsen and Lieut. Luetzow Holm, who are using the Hobby as a base, took off in an attempt to drop provisions and equipment to Nobile yesterday, but were forced back by fog.

Later when the Braganza joined the Hobby the weather cleared and it was hoped today that the fliers would soon be able to make another trip in search of the explorers.

CITY SWEARS 100 SUB-POLICEMEN

LARGEST GROUP IN SEVERAL YEARS

Public Safety Director James M. Clark and Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh put in a busy day by "swearing in" 100 subpatrolmen. This number is the largest to be sworn in at one time for years. The "rookies" will substitute for regular patrolmen who become ill or who are on vacations. Director Clark is shown administering the oath to the last group of 30 in his office. Supt. Walsh is to the right of Ira E. Bing, Jr., in the foreground.

Convention Day by Day

By

O. O. M'INTYRE

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Jottings from a convention reporter's notebook:

H. L. Mencken has worked himself into a lather over the ugliness of some of the Kansas City history makers. Through strong glasses from Section S, row nine, set three, Mr. Mencken is no John Barrymore. Nor was Abraham Lincoln an Adolph Menjou. This country may be ripe for a white-spatted president, but I doubt it.

Kansas City has a Chinese doctor. When everything else fails the farmers might turn to him for relief.

* * *

Among the most assiduous interviewers at the convention were Miss Polly Parsons and Mrs. Mollie Warren Wilcox, of Wichita. These western newspaper women are enterprising and persistent.

Graham McNamee, the radio announcer, is tottering about with the weakness of a sick kitten. He has literally worn himself down to a whisper.

The pre-convention howl that Kansas did not have enough hotels to take care of its visitors was just another canard. There were a few visiting firemen sleeping in the streets, but not through lack of hotel space.

* * *

I went out with Will Rogers this morning while he purchased a suit of clothes. Will refused to pay more than $50 for a suit, and when he puts one on he wears it until Mrs. Rogers makes him buy a new one.

* * *

Many rich delegates rented fully equipped fine Kansas City homes with servants and automobiles for their stay here, and thus were able to live in their accustomed grandeur.

It is estimated that aside from the convention visitors, some seventy-five thousand persons motored into the city daily from the surrounding country, just to see the people and the sights.

Either Kansas City put on company manners, or it is ordinarily unusually polite. There was something wholesome and pleasant about the graciousness of hotel clerks, telephone operators, news stand girls, policemen and others who meet the public. It will make many strangers want to go back here again.

One impression the visitor will carry away from here in the beauty of the trees. Kansas City has avenues as well lined with beautiful foliage as the famed boulevards of Paris.

The roof bungalow idea has caught on here. In New York every rich man has his pent house on the roof.

And no person could have spent six more pleasant days, climatically, than were afforded here.

The official hostess of the Kansas City convention was Mrs. Jacob Loose, a charming white-haired matron who is devoted to the civic welfare of her city. Her magnificent home was an open house, and she was in evidence wherever cordiality was expected.

plane by 500 pounds, they believe they will be able to get off the water. When repeated efforts to take off with a full load failed they dumped 200 gallons and announced they would fly by way of the Azores. They did not indicate what brought the change in their plans. Stultz set this afternoon as a tentative starting time.

Miss Mabel Boll, who is at Harbor Grace with her two pilots, Oliver Le Boutillier and Arthur Argles, awaiting to start the trans-Atlantic plane Columbia again across the Atlantic, has set 4:30 o'clock Sunday morning for her takeoff to Europe.

Weather conditions at both Harbor Grace and Trepassey were unfavorable. A dense fog prevailed at Harbor Grace and rain was forecast.

their favorites before the convention, but all were withdrawn almost as soon as nominated. It then became a ratification meeting and the roll call was a mere formality to comply with the rules of the convention. The result of the vote was:

Charles Curtis, 1,052; Herman Ekern, former attorney general of Wisconsin, 19; Charles G. Dawes, 13; Hanford MacNider, 2; not voting, 3; making a total of 1,089.

None of the other candidates receiving votes were formally placed in nomination. Those votes came from Minnesota, which gave Dawes 3 and Curtis 24; North Dakota voted Curtis 7 and Ekern 6; South Dakota gave Curtis 3 and Dawes 10 and Wisconsin split, giving Curtis 8 Ekern 13; MacNider 2 and 3 not voting.

Immediately after the result had been announced Curtis was made the unanimous choice of the convention.

The fact that Curtis had been a candidate for the presidential nomination was quickly forgotten by the delegates as they hurried out of Kansas City to escape the rising temperature. In fact, Curtis was the nearest rival to Hoover on the ballot.

EXPECTED TO RESIGN WITHIN MONTH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 16. Herbert Hoover, choice of the G. O. P., will not immediately resign from the cabinet to conduct his presidential campaign.

George E. Akerson, his confidential secretary, issued the following statement:

"For the present Mr. Hoover will remain as secretary of commerce, he will continue his duties in the department just as he has in the past."

Hoover is expected to resign in a month or six weeks, however, his resignation next month followed by a swing across the country to his home in Palo Alto, Cal., for about a month's stay, was considered by his associates as the likely course.

Secretary of the Interior Herbert Work, James W. Good and others in the Hoover high command, plan to be in Washington tomorrow or Monday for a series of conferences with Hoover on plans for a fast and furious campaign against the Democracy.

At these conferences it will be decided who shall be chairman of the Republican National Committee; also the course of Hoover for the immediate future.

Cheering throngs greet Hoover at his every public appearance here.

Telegrams of congratulation continue to pour in from all over the world.

couple dropped out after 130 hours. Yesterday Alexander Ardoline and John Farina furnished $500 bond for a hearing on a charge of cruelty, it being alleged they permitted Henrietta Cooper, 15, of 11 Ethel street, to enter the contest. She dropped out Thursday. The girl's parents, John and Mary Cooper, have been similarly charged by agents of the Western Pennsylvania Humane Society before Justice of the Peace Ira H. Edmundson, of Mt. Lebanon.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, June 16.—With 130 hours chalked up against them, 28 couples remained on the arena floor of the Garden here at 8 o'clock this morning of the original 131 teams which started last Sunday night, in the chase for Milt Crandall's $5,000 prize.

Last night the largest crowd since the dance derby of the century opened witnessed the show, including many notables of the stage and screen. Hundreds of dollars were given away by the spectators in sprint and stunt money, and Pittsburgh couples, who participated in them, benefited.

The crowd was brought to its feet when William Bush and Mary Promitis, of Pittsburgh, were awarded $50 for the best entertainment stunt.

This couple later was winner of the "peppy" fox trot $50 prize for first choice, and then Mary won $25 for the most pleasant smile.

Eddie Leonard and Marianne Jacque received a telegram from James M. Egan, Pittsburgh Plasterers' Social Club, this morning which read:

"Local 31 sends regards and best wishes for success."

Tommy Nolan, who looked like a bad bet yesterday morning, has fully recovered from his drowsy spell and is very much in the money at present.

Stella Cappello is bothered with bad feet and may have to give up at any time. The other Pittsburgh entries are hobbling along as usual.

"Cave Man"

HELD FOR COURT

Leo Ford, 30, dubbed "cave man" by the police, faced his two victims, Anna Yonkobish, 23, and her sister, Margaret, 18, in Morals Court. He was held for court when the girls testified that he attempted to attack Margaret in the kitchen of the Gobos Hotel, 10 Smithfield street, and when repelled went to the third floor and attacked Anna, a chambermaid. He escaped and hid in a cave near Elizabeth and later was captured on a boat en route to Cairo, Ill.

FEDERAL AGENTS RENEW BRADDOCK LIQUOR RAIDS

Resuming their raiding in Braddock, Federal prohibition agents last night entered the borough and visited three places. Moonshine was seized at each place, the agents reported. The places raided were a confectionery store in Eighth street, a dwelling and a grocery store in Washington street. An arrest was made at each place, according to the agents.

NEWS PICTURE IN EAST LIBERTY

East Liberty folks who, starting next Monday, will spend an afternoon or evening in the Liberty Theater will have an opportunity of seeing, along with George Bancroft in "The Drag Net," the newspaper film "The Making of a Newspaper."

For, after having been seen at the Grand during this last week by many thousands, the film will move out to the East End show house and become an added item on the program of the Penn avenue house.

"The Drag Net," declared the leading picture made by George Bancroft in many years, is especially fitted to bring out his ability in dramatic roles. He is supported in the film by Evelyn Brent and William Powell.

Harry Langdon, irresistible comedian, will appear in the comedy, "Fiddle Sticks," and on the stage will be three former stars of Zeigfeld's Follies, in Eddie Cook and the Shaw Sisters. They will present singing, dancing and melody.

The newspaper film, finally released for the public after several years of painstaking effort by the International News Reel, is a two-reel picture based on a thrilling news event of public importance. The "shots" take the news from its happening through the interesting maze of human and mechanical handling until its final consumption by the public.

The picture will appear at the Liberty all of next week.

"Whenever I visit the town (Pittsburgh) I get an impression of tremendous dynamic force." —FREDERICK P. KEPPEL.

F. P. KEPPEL

FREDERICK P. KEPPEL, president of the Carnegie Corporation, was born in Staten Island, N. Y., July 2, 1875; educated at Columbia University. Dean of the college at Columbia, 1910-18; director of foreign operations of American Red Cross during World War. President of the Carnegie Corporation since 1923. He lives in New York City.

I am not competent to discuss the place of Pittsburgh in terms of economics, but certainly whenever I visit the town I get an impression of tremendous dynamic force. Turning to a field in which I am a little more competent, may I say that no estimate of the importance of Pittsburgh would be complete without some reference to its great influence in art, an influence through the Carnegie Institute, and particularly through the International Exhibitions and the Art School.

EARLY RUM TRIALS ASKED

Petitions asking that a special term of court be held to try the 167 persons indicted last week by the Federal grand jury will be circulated among the church people in several hundred churches in the Pittsburgh district tomorrow, it was said last night.

Petitions asking for the suspension of all police officers and magistrates pending the trials also will be circulated, and these will be sent to Mayor Charles H. Kline. The demand for a special term of court will be made of United States Attorney John D. Meyer.

The number of signatures fixed to the petition will be tabulated at a meeting of several ministerial bodies Monday and at this time plans will be discussed to hurry the trials of the indicted. The ministers also will discuss taking an appeal to the United States Attorney General to ask his aid in giving the defendants a speedy trial.

Fifty-seven persons have yet to provide bond pending their trials on the charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws. So far 110 of the 167 persons have been accounted for, 108 having provided bonds, one being in Atlanta penitentiary and another in the county jail in default of bond.

ROGERS PLUMES SELF AS SEER

By WILL ROGERS.

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—Wow! She is all over, Hoover and Curtis. What have I been telling you for days about Curtis? I knew he had a cinch for that.

The Republican Party owed him something. But I didn't think they would be so low down as to pay him that way.

He used to be floorwalker of the Republican Party on the Senate floor. Now he will be timekeeper.

Everybody at the convention who wanted the job themselves voted for Curtis. So that means he got eleven hundred votes.

He and Hoover were both nominated—Hoover at the convention, and Curtis later at the hotel.

Borah nominated him with a speech, the shortest, best and most sensible of the entire convention. Most of these men don't nominate candidates, they just handicap 'em.

Whoever nominated Jim Watson should be made to learn his speech, then repeat it to himself before each meal as long as he lives, and then we wouldn't be even with him. Even Jim didn't deserve such a speech.

Another preacher prayed this morning and had to read his prayer. There hasn't been a one that could make an impromptu prayer.

This one was a Methodist, and he wanted us "to look to the hills for wisdom," and here we went and nominated Charles Curtis from the plains of Kansas, where a five-foot ash heap would constitute a precipice.

This preacher prayed for Plymouth Rock. Lord, its Boulder Dam we are after now. There is no appropriation goes with Plymouth Rock.

This guy McNab nominated Hoover in two minutes last night with a splendid speech. Then come an ovation of 20 minutes. To show you how good this first little speech was, it took him almost an hour to spoil it. He was afflicted from what William Jennings Bryan once told me about a speaker at the last Republican convention: "He is suffering from a premature climax." If McNab had quit, it would have been the greatest speech any Californian ever uttered.

I hate to say it, but the women that spoke were all terrible. Well, they were pretty near as bad as the men, and that will give you an idea how bad they were. Charley Curtis' daughter was modest and beautiful.

The prominent Republicans of the great state of Georgia certainly did themselves proud at this convention. They couldn't answer roll call without taking a census of the delegation.

Well, we are on to Houston. Kansas City did a mighty fine job of entertaining and caring for everybody, but so will Houston.

COOLIDGE RULES FROM SUMMER CAPITAL

By International News Service.

SUPERIOR, Wis., June 16.—With President and Mrs. Coolidge at home in the pretentious Cedar Island estate, surrounded by the Brule River amid the northern wilds, attention was terned today to administration of affairs of the United States government from the nation's temporary executive headquarters.

Already the President's administrative offices—which have been established in the Central High School in the town of Superior—are in shape to function with clock-like precision. Pouches containing official mail have been hauled in in preparation for the President's first visit to his headquarters.

The administrative offices are 38 miles away from the summer White House—and attaches anticipate that the nation's chief will make daily early morning visits for the purposes of transacting the government's business just as he was wont to do in Washington—and last summer in the Black Hills.

Visitors will also be received by the President in the executive offices at Superior, it was understood.

The first day at the lodge was spent in putting things in order for the comfort of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, in unpacking the score or more of trunks, packing boxes, cedar chests and suitcases.

Presidential Candidate Herbert Hoover's reply to Mr. Coolidge's warm message of good wishes was received at the executive offices Mr. Hoover expressed himself as "greatly touched by your telegram" and spoke of the "unremitting friendship" shown him by the executive.

Delegate

J. M. CUMMING

J. M. Cumming will head a delegation of local certified public accountants to attend the annual meeting, Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants, Bedford Springs, June 18, 19 and 20.

SHARPSBURG RAIDERS ARREST 3 MEN, WOMAN

Police of Sharpsburg borough last night staging a cleanup of alleged speakeasies raided a saloon and three dwellings and arrested three men and a woman. The prisoners were released on bail pending hearings late today before Justice of the Peace Anthony Ferraro. Burgess Walter P. Berner is said to have ordered the police to "clean up."

'I'm Indian, Too,' Rogers Hails Curtis

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 16.—Well, it's over here. That's one thing about these Republicans, they don't allow things to clog up.

I been telling you for days that Curtis would be the one. He is a Kaw Indian, and me a Cherokee, and I am for him. It's the first time we have ever got a break, the only American that has ever run for that high office.

WILL ROGERS

So, hurrah for you, Charlie, a real two-fisted bird who used to be a jockey. Come on, Injun! If you are elected, let's run the white people out of this country.

On to Houston, to the biggest show on earth.

Yours,
WILL.

P. S.—Kansas City, you did yourself proud. It's Oklahoma that supports you and makes you a city, but I didn't hear a complaint about you. Of course, the show at times was terrible, but no show can be better than the cast.

AUTO WRECKS TROLLEY: MOTORMAN SUES OWNER

Frank Scinullo, a motorman on a Center avenue street car, brought suit yesterday for $25,000 damages against Clair H. Quinetti, whose truck ran into a trolley car September 17, 1927. The cab of the car was caved in and the motorman severely injured. He says he has been unable to work since the accident.

REV. JOHN J. M'KALLEN, OIL CITY RECTOR, DIES

TITUSVILLE, Pa., June 16.—(AP.)—The Rev. Father John J. McKallen, 55, for six years rector of St. Titus Church here, died this morning. He was ordained in New York City in 1902 and was a resident of Coalpa,

CYCLIST IN FATAL WRECK STILL IN SERIOUS SHAPE

Ernest Viock, 20, of Brackenridge, is in a serious condition in the Allegheny Valley Hospital today after an automobile-motorcycle crash in which Elma Helena Fentzel, 21, of Cherry street, Brackenridge, was killed. The young woman, according to a report to the coroner, was riding on the handlebars of Viock's motorcycle when it collided with an automobile driven by the latter's stepfather, Harry Viock, of Brackenridge.

ENTANGLING TREES SNARE CAR

LEARNING TO DRIVE

When the auto which she was learning to drive got beyond her control and plunged over a 25-foot embankment at the Davis avenue entrance to Riverview Park, Mrs. Lawrence Henkle, 44, 950 North Lincoln avenue, and her nephew, John Henkle, 19, 1123 Pennsylvania avenue, were shaken up. The car lodged between two trees (shown at front and rear) and was slightly damaged.

5,000 CIGARS THIEF'S LOOT

If you see a man proudly displaying 5,000 cigars in a vest pocket, yell lustily for the nearest policeman. Somebody eased into the tobacco plant of Joseph Green at 4624 Liberty avenue early today and, not satisfied with seizing eight cases of cigarets, stole 5,000 cigars.

"PROHIS" SMASH BEER KEGS

This isn't spray of "Sad Sea Waves," but the snowy foam of 115 barrels of "good" pre-war beer as it poured into the Monongahela river, from a railroad siding near Point bridge. It was seized in a freight car in Wilkinsburg and brought to Pittsburgh for destruction. With mallets and axes prohibition agents attacked the barrels, seized en route to Pittsburgh from Philadelphia, shipped as a consignment of "granite."

FATHERS' DAY OBSERVED IN CITY TOMORROW

Tomorrow, the third Sunday in June, is Fathers' Day.

For 19 years it has been observed in honoring the heads of American households, and in all parts of the country it has an important place in the calendars of the churches and in the homes of the people.

In the churches it will be marked by special services and in the homes by the bestowal of gifts from mothers and children. In honor of the day observance has been given to the custom of wearing a rose—a red rose if the wearer's father is living and a white rose if he is dead.

The day was first observed in Spokane, Wash., in June, 1909, on the suggestion of Mrs. John B. Dodd, a talented artist and clubwoman. Special services were held in many of the churches and reunions of families brought together children who had long been separated from their parental abode.

The incident attracted nationwide attention and the custom has spread to all parts of the country. Pittsburgh was one of the first cities in the country to follow Mrs. Dodd's suggestion.

29 CARS BURN NEAR HADLEY ON N. Y. C. R. R.

GREENVILLE, Pa., June 16.—Twenty-nine cars were burned when oil and gasoline tank cars were ignited on the Franklin division of the New York Central Railroad, near Hadley, Mercer county, yesterday. The intense heat of the fire drove firemen back when they attempted to fight the flames. The cause of the fire has not been determined. A half mile of track was burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

TWO SEEKING DIVORCES LAY DESERTION CHARGE

Emil Jannings, Lewis Stone And Florence Vidor Win Praise For Their Work in "The Patriot"

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 16.

MY good friends at Paramount permitted me to peep at "The Patriot," Emil Jannings' Lubitsch-directed masterpiece. I'm still atremble with the thrill of it. There aren't words to express the marvels of the picture. It is adult entertainment with a capital "A," and in any single sequence makes adequate amends for a hundred of the anemic dish-water cinemas which threaten to curse the screen with mediocrity.

The classic history concerns Paul, mad Czar of Russia, and his confidant, Count Pahlan, who sacrifices friendship, love and life itself through patriotism. Pahlan, played to the hilt by Lewis Stone, is the first villain-hero I recall. Trifler, cheater and traitor, he emerges from a welter of corruption, positively defied by his supreme sacrifice.

Jannings, in his portrayal of the imbecile sovereign, towers titan-like over every mummer of the screen. If there has been doubt as to what brow should bear the dramatic crown of filmdom, "The Patriot" dissipates it. Jannings is without equal. The rest are earth-bound chanticleers. He the "Lone Eagle" soaring mile-high over them.

A word, too, for Florence Vidor, who surprises with the warmth of her performance. A share of praise for Bert Glennon, cameraman, who is now a director in his own right. And, of course, a hearty "hoch" for Lubitsch, master of the megaphone.

Ruth Chatterton, of the stage, who married into movie society when she wed Ralph Forbes, almost made her cinema debut opposite George Bancroft in "Docks of New York." Ruth took several tests, but apparently wasn't quite the type. For Betty Compson gets the job. Betty is ideal for this sort of part, and she and Bancroft together should make a picture superior to any of the rough-neck dramas which the star of "Underworld" has contributed.

Eddie Buzzell's theatrical engagements prevent him from appearing in two films. So he has abandoned the idea of appearing in a "Squeakie," and will make his bow on the screen in a Gotham production, "The Man Higher Up," with Francis X. Bushman and Gertrude Olmsted.

Fred Godwin, the unknown who has been selected to play the leading male role in "Salvage," will be known in future as Fred Mackaye—"for screen purposes." Seems to me Godwin would look just as well in the lights. Fred, incidentally, is the second unknown to get a break recently. Leroy Mason is reported quite a "rave" opposite Dolores Del Rio in "Revenge."

Camilla or Connie—that is the question. Which will be "Mrs. Cheyney?" And shall we ever hear the last of her? Fraulein Horn or Miss Talmadge? The riddle as to which charmer will actually play the lead in Lubitsch's next drama is creating more partisan discussion than the presidential nominations. Also, John Barrymore is reported both in and out. So take your choice. Personally, I'm pulling for Constance. America first!

Oh, boy, how the screen folk with stage experience are lording it over the less fortunate since all Hollywood talk is of the "Talkies." Director Bob Leonard has a hundred stage plays to his credit, and is one of those who is anxious to megaphone a sound picture. Leonard's latest was Marion Davies' starring vehicle, "Her Cardboard Lover." Miss Davies, too, has experience in "legit." So perhaps they'll work together and make her next one "Rah, Rah, Rosalie," a sound film.

There's quite a bit of rivalry between Northern and Southern California. But any way Hollywood is giving 'Frisco a break in sending Dorothy Mackaill up there on location for some scenes of "Waterfront," which Bill Seiter will direct. Not that Hollywood hasn't its own waterfront, if it wanted to be mean. Where do you think the bathing girls bathe if it isn't in Hollywood?

COMING BILLS VARIED

Harry Bannister, Katherine Wilson, Josephine Whittell, Louise Quinn, Kathryn Card, Fred Sullivan, Howard Freeman, Clifford Dunstan, Joseph Thayer, C. Russel Sage, Frank Reyman and others will have parts in "The Gold Diggers," next week's attraction in the Nixon.

"White Collars," announced for presentation by the George Sharp Players at the Pitt next week, was produced first in Los Angeles, where it ran two years. It had a long run in New York after it played here in the Pitt.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," the 1928 version, will be shown as the photoplay feature in the Davis next week. The principal scenes show a modern circus and the leading players are W. C. Fields, Chester Conklin and Louise Fazenda.

Lon Chaney becomes a comedian for the first time in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," film feature next week in the Penn. The stage show is titled "Seeing Things," over which Teddy Joyce will preside.

Peggy English, recording artist, will be included in the stage program announced for the Stanley Monday. The picture feature for the week will be Colleen Moore in "Happiness Ahead."

Sue Carol will be seen in the leading role of "Walking Back," coming to the Grand screen next week.

"Honor Bound," a story of prison life, will be shown in the Olympic next week. It features George O'Brien and Estelle Taylor in the principal roles.

Vaudeville in the Harris next week will include Dance Variations. The two screen features will be Sally O'Neill in "Bachelors' Paradise" and Belle Bennett in "The Devil's Skipper."

Among the vaudeville attractions in the Sheridan Square next week will be Rae Samuels. The two screen features will be Sue Carol in "Walking Back" and Estelle Taylor in "Honor Bound."

FAVORITE STARS -:- IN SCENES FROM -:- THEIR NEW FILMS

Jack Mulhall and Greta Nissen have written part of their telegram and appear to be wondering how to condense a lot of meaning into a word or two. Part of "The Butter and Egg Man."

Richard Barthelmess, the criminal, faces Richard Barthelmess, the district attorney, in "Wheel of Chance." If Dick gets two salaries for playing two roles he should get fidgety and cross when he goes home nights. Anyway you see how a person can be in two places at one time.

Betty Compson and Milton Sills in "The Barker." Even if we couldn't read those lines back of Betty we'd know she was a Hawaiian dancer. We've never been to Hawaii, either, but we have studied under Sherlock Holmes.

Films Reclaim Nita Naldi In Paris

Despite her assertions that she was "through with movies forever," Nita Naldi can't stay away from them.

Not so many months ago, Miss Nadi deserted Hollywood for a matrimonial career, announcing her retirement for a quiet, domestic life abroad. Now she has been cast for an important role in "The Model of Montmartre," to be filmed in Paris by Leonce Perret, according to cabled advices received at the Paramount studios. Paramount is to release the production.

ORGAN RECITAL PROGRAMS

William H. Oetting, director of the Pittsburgh Musical Institute, will be the guest organist at the free organ recitals this evening and Sunday afternoon in Carnegie Music Hall, Schenley Park. The program for this evening follows: Theme and Variations, M. Enrico Bossi; Carillon, Eric Delamarter; Three Mountain Sketches, Joseph W. Clokey; Two Selections, Joseph Bonnet; Sixth Symphony, op. 42, Charles Marie Widor.

The program for the recital at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon is as follows: Festival Prelude, "A Mighty Fortress," William Faulkes; Prayer from the Opera "The Jewels of the Madonna," Wolf-Ferrari; Elfentanz, Bernard Johnson; Scotch Fantasia, Will C. Macfarlane; Sea Sketches, R. S. Stoughton; Fountain Reverie, Percy E. Fletcher; In Summer, Charles A. Stebbins; Two Pieces, Louis Vierne; Gavotte, Saint-Saens; Polonaise in A, Chopin.

Dr. Caspar Koch will be heard in the free organ recital to be given in Carnegie Hall, North Side, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Joseph Williams, bass, of the First Baptist Church, will be the guest soloist and Lyman Almy Perkins will be the accompanist. The program includes: Solemn Processional, Strauss-Reger; Fantasia and Fugue in G Minor, Bach; bass solo, "Rise I Say," from Un Ballo in Maschera, Verdi; Angelus, Renaud; Hungarian Dance, Brahms; Meditation, Gottschalg; bass solos, The Little Hills a Calling, Morris; Roadways, Densmore; Cornelius March, Mendelssohn.

FLAG EDITORIAL COMMENDED BY READER

A letter of commendation for an editorial on Flag Day published by The Sun-Telegraph with comments on the manner in which Flag Day was observed has been received by The Sun-Telegraph from Frank Cruickshank. Mr. Cruickshank is a member of the firm of Cruickshank Brothers Company. The letter, dated June 14, follows:

"You have a beautiful editorial in today's Sun-Telegraph 'Birthday of Our Flag.'

"The writer, however, was very much disgusted this morning on his way to business. Passed two public schools, Avalon and Bellevue schools, neither one of them had the flag on display; also passed 10 Protestant churches with not a flag in sight; passed two Catholic churches with the flag unfurled with all its glory.

"It seems to me your paper should call attention to such neglect on the part of public institutions, especially public schools."

KIWANIANS TO HOLD INTER-CLUB BANQUET

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., June 16.—Four hundred and fifty Kiwanians from Pittsburgh, Sewickley, Aliquippa, Ellwood City, New Castle, Rochester and Ambridge, will attend the inter-club meeting here Monday evening. Howard McCreary will preside. Addresses will be made by Judge Frank E. Reader, New Brighton; Chester A. Lewis, College Hill, and Charles Donley, Pittsburgh, lieutenant-governor of the southwestern district.

KENNYWOOD ELEPHANT CELEBATES BIRTHDAY

"Tillie," mother elephant of the John Robinson Military herd, now appearing in Kennywood Park as a special free twice-a-day attraction, is 112 years old today, a birthday party is to be held in her honor in the park's big music pavilion. Tillie will cut and distribute a large cake, weighing almost 350 pounds. There are three other elephants in the Robinson herd, which closes its engagement in the park today.

SHARPSBURG BOY SHOT, SUSPECT PUT IN JAIL

Shot in the leg, while at play in his yard, Ernest Ettmeyer, 13, of 1209 Main street, Sharpsburg, is recovering today in St. Francis Hospital. James Macey, 40, a Negro, of Sharpsburg, said to have fired the shot, was locked up by borough police. Macey was under the influence of liquor, police said.

DANCERS TO GO ON RIVER BOAT AGAIN

For the second time since the marathon dance opened in the Academy, the dancers will be transported to the Japanese Garden, excursion steamer, where they will continue the contest over the weekend. They will be taken on the boat at 11 o'clock tonight and be returned to the theater shortly after Sunday midnight.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

AN INTERESTING program has been arranged for the Goldman Band concert, to be broadcast over the NBL system, including WCAE, tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The "Rakoczy March" from "The Damnation of Faust," by Hector Berlioz, will open the program. Under the direction of Edwin Franko Goldman, the band also will present the "Egmont Overture," by Ludwig Von Beethoven, one of the 10 numbers which that composer wrote to Goethe's tragedy and which was first performed at Vienna in 1810. There also will be heard songs from Wagner's "Lohengrin," which has probably enjoyed the greatest popularity of all the Wagner operas. The Fantasie to be played contains the most popular airs of the opera. Two Hungarian numbers by Johannes Brahms will lead up to a fantastic performance, depicting the "Evolution of Dixie."

The Moana Hawaiian players, being heard daily over KDKA at noon and again at 6 o'clock in the evening, have arranged a special program of their native music for the broadcast through the pioneer station this evening. Arrangements have been made for station KGU at Honolulu to pick up the program and rebroadcast.

This week's presentation by the Strollers, under direction of Mae Sweeney, will be a one-act comedy, "The Third Angle." It will be given over WCAE at 7 o'clock. The play carries the story of a highly temperamental artist who frequently lapses from the path of duty, but each time he is returned to the domestic fold by his clever wife. Members of the cast are Gregg P. Bridges, Florence Stewart and Mae Sweeney.

PRIMATE VISITS UKRAINIANS

The Rev. Ivan Theodorovich, Archbishop of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of the United States and Canada, arrived in Pittsburgh yesterday for his annual visitation. He was welcomed by the clergy of St. Vladimir's Ukrainian Church at Sidney and South Eighteenth streets, where tomorrow he will celebrate high mass. He will be assisted by the Rev. H. Klymowich, the Rev. Paul Korsunowsky, the Rev. Dimitry Tidlecky, the Rev. Leon Kushnir and the Rev. L. Wesolowsky.

After services a banquet will be held in Ukrainian National Hall, and Harry Szabatura, president of the congregation, will be toastmaster.

LENDERS' ASSOCIATION ELECTS THREE MEMBERS

Three new members were elected at the monthly meeting of the Pittsburgh Industrial Lenders' Association Thursday night in the Fort Pitt Hotel. The association now comprises 22 licensed companies in the Pittsburgh district, it was announced.

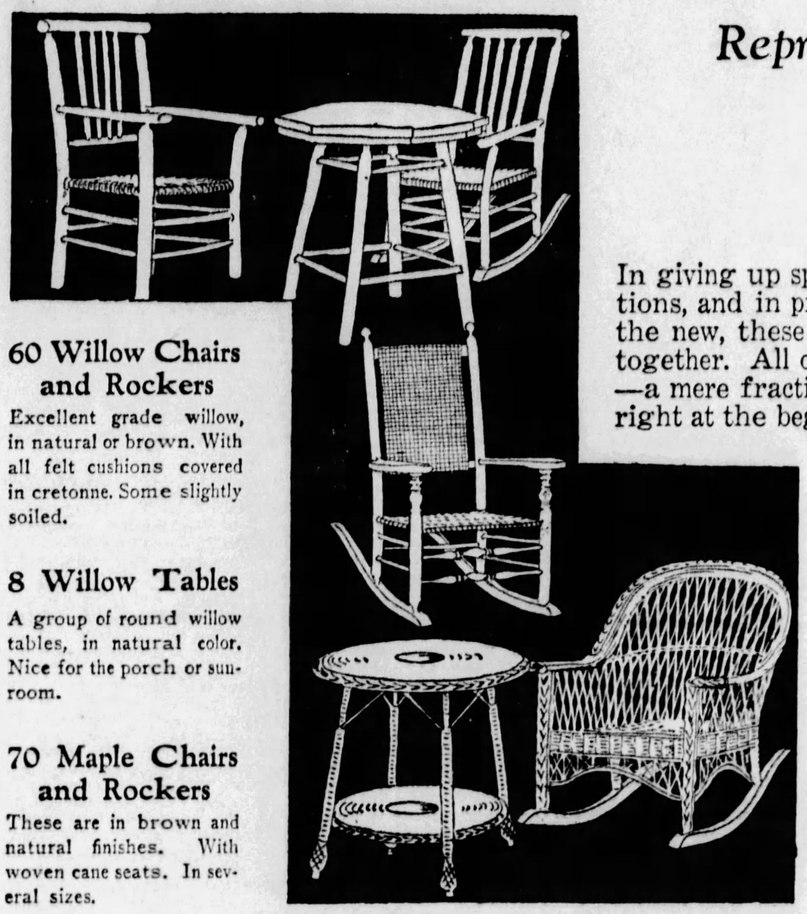
263 PORCH CHAIRS AND TABLES



Repriced, Beginning Monday

$4.75

In giving up space in the department due to building operations, and in preparing to move from the old warehouse into the new, these odd pieces of porch furniture were gathered together. All of them have been marked to the one low price—a mere fraction of the former price. A remarkable offering right at the beginning of the outdoor season.

60 Willow Chairs and Rockers

Excellent grade willow, in natural or brown. With all felt cushions covered in cretonne. Some slightly soiled.

8 Willow Tables

A group of round willow tables, in natural color. Nice for the porch or sunroom.

70 Maple Chairs and Rockers

These are in brown and natural finishes. With woven cane seats. In several sizes.

105 Hickory Chairs and Rockers

"Old Hickory Rustic" chairs and rockers, with cane seats; sturdy, comfortable, practical for porch or lawn.

20 Hickory Tables

Octagonal tables of hickory fine for camps and summer cottages, porch or lawn. 24-inch size.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Orange Blossoms, June and Saturday Mingle as Wedding Bells Ring for Pittsburgh Girls

IF YOU catch the fragrance of orange blossoms in the air today you will know without looking at the calendar that it is June and Saturday. The closing days of the weeks during June are always filled with weddings—they are popular among brides far beyond any other day. There are several important ones scheduled for today, among them those of Katharine Marsh and Louise Fownes.

Katharine is being married at 4:30 today at "Llanfair Lodge," the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Marsh, in Woodland road, becoming the bride of William Clarke Fuellhart, son of the William O. Fuellharts, of Endeavor, Pa. The ceremony will be performed by her brother-in-law, the Rev. Jacob S. Payton, assisted by her cousin, the Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker Work, of New York. She will wear a gown of ivory duchess satin trimmed with rose point and duchess lace, an heirloom in the family. Her court train is of satin and lace bordered with maline, with a semi-circle of orange blossoms weighting the end, and her veil is held with a low lace coronet and orange blossoms. She will carry sweetheart roses and mock orange blossoms.

Mrs. Jacob S. Payton and Mrs. Edward F. W. Salisbury, Katharine's sisters, will be her matrons of honor, and their frocks are of chiffon with circular flounces and small shoulder capes. Mrs. Payton will wear rose and Mrs. Salisbury, larkspur blue. They will wear horsehair braid hats to match, and will carry roses and delphinium. Robert Charles Fuellhart is to be his brother's best man and the ushers will include a classmate at Princeton, George Storer Stephenson, of New York, and Katherine's brother, James I. Marsh.

After the ceremony there will be a reception and dinner, with covers laid for 26 at the bridal table. Mr. and Mrs. Fuellhart are going to take a month's trip to the West coast, and when they come back they will be at Tidioute, Pa., for the rest of the summer.

We didn't have any advance information about Louise Fownes' wedding, and you will be interested to know that she is marrying a Southerner, Halbert J. Blue, of Aberdeen, N. C. Louise, you know, is the daughter of the junior William Clarke Fownes, and the wedding will take place at 5:30 o'clock in their home in Hulton road, Oakmont. The Rev. W. J. Cheatham, of Pinehurst, will officiate, and only the two families will be present. Neither Louise nor Mr. Blue will have any attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Blue are going to live in Pinehurst.

A few circus features such as clown costumes worn by members of the committee, hot dog sandwiches and ice cream cones sold on the balcony and huge posters on the ballroom walls turned the annual Skin and Cancer Foundation dispensary board's benefit into a "circus" dinner dance last night at the Willows. Several hundred guests attended the affair and from all appearances they had quite a good time. Tables were placed around the dance floors in both the ballroom and the terrace, and in one entrance way there was a table of "Bingo."

Dinner was served from 7:30 o'clock until nearly 10 o'clock, and the other "eats" were sold later in the evening. Clusters of variously colored toy balloons and rose chenille draperies hung from the lights made the rooms attractive.

Mrs. Thomas M. Jones III was in general charge of the affair, and she wore a Pierrot costume of black and white with a high peaked clown hat. The others on the committee wore different colors and their costumes added quite a touch to the general decorations.

Quite a few of our local folks are in New York, I hear. The William B. Schillers have been there for a few days and so have Mrs. Frank Kier and her daughter, Frances. Ellen McClay is another who has been there during the week.

Other local persons out of town now are Mr. and Mrs. T. Clinton Jenkins and their daughter, Dorothea, of Morewood avenue. They left on Thursday night to attend the commencement exercises at Smith College on Monday, when another daughter, Elizabeth, will be graduated. Dorothea is a student at Bryn Mawr.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Irene Shepherd Colbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Colbert, of Heberton avenue, and Charles Aubrey Bollinger, of this city, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Charles F. Bollinger, of Meadville, which was solemnized last Saturday in the future home of the bride and bridegroom in Eastwood road. The ceremony was performed by Mr. Bollinger's father, assisted by the Rev. Jewart W. Miller, pastor of the Lincoln Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. and Mrs. Bollinger are taking a Southern trip.

Miss Jessie Fleming Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin James Young, of Boquet street, Oakland, whose marriage to Lauren Newton Douglas, of this city, will be solemnized June 30 in the home of her aunt, Mrs. Charles Close, in Wightman street, will have her cousin, Miss Helen Young, as her maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Miss Minnie Dickson Woods and Miss Katharine V. Cook. Charles March is to be best man and the ushers will include William Davis and Marion Davis. Miss Minnie and Miss Ruth Woods gave a bridge luncheon in their home in Forbes street this afternoon for Miss Young and on Monday night, James Gray, of Aylesboro avenue, will give a bridge party. The rehearsal dinner will be given the night before the wedding in Webster Hall by Miss Helen Young.

Miss Adeline McCormick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. McCormick, of Duquesne Heights, has chosen Wednesday as the date for her marriage to Patrick Joseph Hamill, of Braddock. Miss Lillian McCormick will be her sister's maid of honor and Martin Haney, of Braddock, will be best man. Miss Ella O'Leary, of West Park, entertained Thursday night for Miss McCormick. Mr. Hamill was graduated from Pitt in 1927.

* * *

The marriage of Miss Carrie G. Fisher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fisher, of Veteran street, North Side, and Joseph Bonomo, of this city, was solemnized yesterday morning in the Tenth United Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Robert McVey Campbell. The bride wore pink georgette with picture hat to match and a corsage of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Miss Florence Fisher, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in blue georgette with hat to match, and her corsage was of pink rosebuds and lilies of the valley. Fred Stickle was best man. A breakfast for the families followed the ceremony in the Fisher home. After a western trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bonomo will be at home in Pennsylvania avenue, North Side.

The marriage of Miss Helen Rex, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Rex, of Ingram, and Dr. William W. White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur White, of McKeesport, was solemnized Thursday night by the Rev. S. Wilmer Beitler, of Butler. The bride wore ivory satin trimmed with real lace and her veil was held with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of roses and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Harriet E. Rex, as maid of honor, appeared in yellow taffeta and carried yellow roses and blue delphinium. The bridesmaids were Miss Louise White, sister of the bridegroom, in blue taffeta, and Miss Lorena Orr, in green. They carried Dresden bouquets. Audrey Rex, niece of the bride, as flower girl, wore peach georgette and carried a basket of pink roses. Dr. H. Stanley Wallace was best man and the ushers included Philip K. Herr, of McKeesport, and Ensign Hugh Robert Nieman, of the U. S. S. Tennessee. Mrs. Frank Rex sang and the wedding music was played by William Reger. Dr. and Mrs. White have left for Quebec.

Miss Deane D. Reed, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Reed, of Summerlea street, has chosen June 30 as the date for her marriage to William Paul Blackburn, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Paul Blackburn, of Jackson street. The ceremony will be performed at 8:30 o'clock in the Bellefield Presbyterian Church. Miss Ann Reed will be her sister's maid of honor and the flower girl will be Joan Goff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. David Goff, Jr., of Boston. William H. Gantner, Jr., will be best man and the ushers will include Russell Rudolph, Jr., of Kittanning; A. Hamilton Cline, III, Henry A. Schroeder, Harry Kay Voelp, Jr., Dr. Luke D. Patrick and James Stuart of this city.

* * *

Mrs. Anna S. Sauer of Marshall avenue, North Side, announces the marriage of her daughter, Irma Isabelle Sauer, and Clement J. Miller, of Pittsburgh, which took lace June 13 in the Annunciation Church. The Rev. P. J. McCabe was the officiant. The bride wore flowered orchid chiffon and a picture hat to match, and carried Ophelia roses. Miss Hilda R. Sauer, as her sister's maid of honor, appeared in flowered green chiffon, a picture hat of the same shade, and carried Pernet roses. Frank J. Miller was his brother's best man. After an Eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home July 1 in East street, North Side.

A miscellaneous shower and bridge party was given Tuesday night by Mrs. Thomas D. Hudson, Miss Esther R. Sholl, Miss Jane M. McAfee and Miss Clara S. Patterson in the home of Miss Helen E. Voelker in North Beatty street in honor of Miss Leota M. Weeter, of Gross street. Miss Weeter's marriage to Winfield C. TINY TIM OUTING DECLARED "BEST YET"

"The best one we've had yet" was the way the Dickens Fellowship's Tiny Tim picnic of yesterday was described. It was held in the rhododendron house, Highland Park, with 105 crippled children as guests of the Fellowship. The little folk were taken to the park by bus or private motor car and all day long there was a round of entertainment especially planned for their pleasure. Motion pictures were continuous, one end of the shelter house having been screened off for this. Of course there were balloons and lollypops and other gifts. There were boat rides for all, a program of songs by the guests from the Industrial Home for Crippled Children, and, as the crowning event of the day, the picnic supper. After the children were seen safely off on their homeward journey, the Fellowship members had their own picnic supper, an innovation of this year. The welfare committee, which looks after all the Fellowship philanthropies, was in charge, the committee including L. C. Edgar, chairman; Mrs. Hettie M. Porch, Mrs. John G. Howard, Mrs. Marie Tello Phillips, Mrs. Janet Reisfar, W. Willis Whited, W. E. Sansom and M. R. Sumner.

The Woman's City Club has planned a special luncheon for Wednesday at 12:30 o'clock for the purpose of hearing the proposed bond issue discussed. Mrs. Henry Clay McEldowney, the new president of the club, will introduce the speakers, each one of whom will discuss a phase of the bond issue. Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, Mrs. Pauline Merrill and Mrs. George S. Baton will assist Mrs. McEldowney as hostesses.

* * *

Under auspices of the department of literature of the Congress of Clubs the first annual banquet of the Bookfellows' Library Guild will be held in the clubhouse Thursday night at 6:30. Mrs. Flora Warren Seymour, head of the Order of Bookfellows, will preside.

* * *

Instead of meeting with Mrs. Roswell H. Johnson on Wednesday, members of the Woman's Alliance of the First Unitarian Church will be guests of Mrs. Norman W. Storer, of Reynold street.

* * *

Officers will be elected Wednesday night by the Taylor Allderdice Parent Teacher Association. The meeting will precede a performance of "Snickerty Nick," which is to be given by the pupils as a benefit for their stage scenery fund.

* * *

Mrs. Margaret E. Phillips, of Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, is taking reservations for the second annual banquet of Schenley Guard, Women's Benefit Association, to be held Thursday, June 28, in the Seventh Avenue Hotel.

An outing is being planned by the Eighteenth Ward Women's Civic Club for June 27. The next meeting is scheduled for Friday night in Veterans' Hall, Arlington avenue.

* * *

The women of the North End Methodist Episcopal Church, Bonvue street, will hold a strawberry and ice cream festival on the church grounds next Thursday evening.

COUPON MAILING BEGINS TODAY FOR PICNIC

Here you are!

Now, boys and girls, get in line for the big Sun-Tele Jubilee at the National Amusement Park, above Aspinwall, on Tuesday, July 3.

You see the coupon is ready. Fill it out, writing your name and address plainly, and send it at once to the Jubilee Manager, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. In return you will receive a ticket of admission with 14 coupons attached. Then you will be "all set" for the greatest frolic of your life.

The Sun-Tele pays the expenses at the park. You will see the big amusement attractions, you will get a balloon and a French vanilla bar, "the cream of the valley."

The Sunday Sun-Tele will tell you more about the great time you will have and how you can get your friends together for a neighborhood trip to the Jubilee.

All Sun-Tele boys and girls please remember this: No ticket can be sent without application made on a coupon printed here, and be sure to write your name and address plainly. If the Jubilee manager cannot read your writing he will not be able to send you a ticket, and he will be quite as much disappointed as you. So write plainly.

Fatal Pleasures Are Not Normal

THERE is a prayer to be found in the works of Pascal. He proposes to ask of God the proper use of sickness:

"Yes, Lord, I confess that I have esteemed health a blessing, not because it is an easy means for serving Thee with utility, for accomplishing more cares and vigils in Thy service, and for the assistance of my neighbor; but because by its aid I could abandon myself with less restraint to the abundance of the delights of life, and better relish fatal pleasures."

DR. COPELAND

I do not agree with Pascal. I doubt if perfect health ever leads to loss of moral restraint, or tends to "fatal pleasures."

Many, if not most, of the appetites for such pleasures are founded on perversions of health. We are not likely to be conscious of any part of the body until it is congested and disturbed by ill-health or appetite.

The latest advances in the treatment of brain disorder indicate that infection of some organ remote from the head is responsible for the mental aberration. In many instances the disturbance may be so slight as not to be recognized, but yet be sufficient to drive the victim out of his accustomed path of rectitude.

The appearance of health is not sufficient. It must be health founded on normal function of normal organs. Otherwise there may be such tendencies as Pascal bemoans.

Nothing is more deceptive than the superficial aspects of health. If you are unfamiliar with the real evidences, for instance, tuberculosis, you may be misled. Visit one of the many splendid tuberculosis sanitariums or camps in North America and you will see bright-eyed, tanned and red-cheeked boys and girls who will appear to the layman as perfectly healthy and normal persons. Fascal may have been deceived, as you would be, by such outward signs of health.

The proper use of sickness, as I see it, is to do the best one can do to overcome it, and, with God's help, to be restored to health. I should never seek sickness as a means of escaping temptation, because, as I have indicated, I do not believe perfect health is capable of leading to a desire for fatal pleasures.

If I were a preacher, I should proclaim first the gospel of good health, knowing that when my congregation had been restored to physical normality, it would not be difficult to lead them into the ways of pleasantness and the paths of peace. Hunger of stomach and the abnormal yearnings and appeals of other organs are due to neglect of simple rules of wisdom. Give us first good health, then everything else that is good will be added to our heritage.

Answers to Health Queries

J. B. Q.—What will clear up indigestion and nervousness. The patient is in a run-down condition?

A.—The general health should receive first attention. The nervousness and indigestion will no doubt improve as the health improves.

Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By HELEN ROWLAND

CONSIDER the Sheik, my Son.

He goeth softly, and the words of his mouth are fairer than a promise and sweeter than honey. Yea, they are tempered with plausibility and camouflaged with frankness and uttered with beautiful restraint.

* * *

His "line" varieth with each woman, and his method is never the same with two damsels. And of nicknames, he hath a select assortment.

* * *

The giraffe and the cunarder he pronounceth "cute;" he reproveth the highbrow for her "sex-appeal;" but the flapper he praiseth for her wit and her sophistication.

* * *

He voweth to the beautiful dumbbell that it is her "spiritual companionship" which appealeth unto him; but the wallflower he calleth "dangerous."

HELEN ROWLAND

He danceth with the triple-chinned dowager and calleth her "Kitty" though her name be Katherine—but he imploreth the wild and jazzy damsel to be his "good influence."

* * *

Thus doth he offer unto every woman a brand new thrill! And each thinketh in her heart that she hath "IT!"

* * *

And lo, all his days are pleasantness and all his ways strewn with cut flowers and dinner invitations.

* * *

Matrons follow after him and confide in him their domestic sorrows, while they feed him from their husbands' tables and solace him with wine from their husbands' cellars.

* * *

Maidens hang upon his telephone and drive him about in their motor cars, hostesses make glad his week-ends, and flappers supply him with kisses and amusement.

Yet envy him not, my Son. For in the sweatshops or in the fields no man laboreth harder than a professional woman-tamer.

* * *

Give him the fruit of his labors, which are boredom and satiety and everlasting servitude. And, in the end, marriage to a stout widow with ducats and diamonds, who useth him as a combination groom, errand boy and lady's maid!

* * *

For verily, verily, no man can be at the same time a successful woman-tamer and his OWN master!

Yet have I beheld strong men who sought to combine sheiking and business, and were filled with astonishment when they failed.

For woman-taming is an art and a lift-study which requireth skill, diplomacy and eternal vigilance. And its rewards are but husks.

* * *

For when a sheik loseth his youth and his figure and his top-hair he loseth likewise his NERVE. And without nerve no gambler, no tumbler and no woman-tamer can survive!

Teasing Girls Soon Found Out, Says Fay King

WHAT ARE YOU TRYING TO DO, BIG BOY, BREAK MY HEART?
WHEN SHE HAS NOTHING BETTER TO DO SHE KIDS HIM ALONG!
HE'S NOTHING IN MY LIFE! I WOULDN'T BE ANNOYED BY HIM!
WELL, THEN WHY DON'T YOU TELL HIM SO, AND LET HIM ALONE!
GEE! I CAN'T FIGURE THAT GIRL OUT! SHE BREAKS A DATE WITH ME AND I THINK SHE'S SORE, AND THEN SHE CALLS ME UP AND IS ALL SUGAR AGAIN!
SHE'S JUST A SUGAR-COATED PILL!
FAY-KING

By FAY KING

THERE are certain girls who make it a point to string along all the young men they meet, so that they need never be dateless.

Caring more for themselves than they do for the young men, they are able to be very clever and fascinating.

Self-assurance, unhampered with the timidity of real love, can do this.

They succeed in being more or less adored by most of these susceptible young men. Being so self satisfied with their success, these girls are rarely bored by those in whom they are not at all interested.

But it is very unfair.

You can't blame a man for being flattered when a pretty girl, or a rich girl, seems to be so much interested in him! He may even care much more for another girl. But being really in love with him she cannot do and say all the clever things the disinterested girl does.

Real love makes one self conscious and tongue tied.

These trifling girls seem to delight in hanging on to a fellow. They don't really want him, but like to keep any other girl from getting him.

However, it doesn't take most men long to find out when they are being played for fools. The wise one soon drops the mere tantalizers!

FIRST TOURNEY ENTRIES IN

Youngsters In Line

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE first entries for the Sun-Telegraph's first annual West Penn amateur junior golf championship for the William Randolph Hearst trophy, to be held next month, were received by the Golf Tournament Editor yesterday, and Lawrenceville, Mt. Washington and Squirrel Hill ran first, second and third, respectively, for the honor of placing the first boys in the tournament.

Andrew Kowalski, of 2 Forty-third and One-Half street, Lawrenceville, who is just 15, and in grade 8-A, ought to do well in the tournament, for he was the first one to take advantage of the competition the Sun-Tele is offering all junior golfers of the tri-state district.

The second entry was that of Milton S. King, aged 17, who lives at 137 Grandview avenue, Mt. Washington. John Slocum, 16, of 6351 Douglas street, Squirrel Hill, had his entry in third. He is in 10-B in the Taylor Allerdice Junior High School.

We're off to a bang-up start. Keep the entries coming!

The only requirements, boys, to enter the Sun-Telegraph tournament are that you be an amateur, as defined by the United States Golf Association, and not more than 18 years of age nor attending an institution of learning above high school grades.

There will be two divisions, a Junior class for boys between 15 and 18, and a Sub-Junior class for boys 14 and under. The winner of the major division will receive the beautiful William Randolph Hearst trophy, while other individual prizes will be given in both classes.

Play will be at 18 holes, medal, over one of the local links, which will be announced later, along with the date of the event.

There is no fee whatsoever—everything is free. An entry blank is printed on this page; sign it, have it countersigned by your parent or guardian, and send it in to the Golf Tournament Editor.

"I THINK that all properly conducted competitions are helpful to the game." That was the reply of Herbert H. The Sun-Telegraph tournament will be conducted under U. S. G. A. rules, and so will conform with Mr. Ramsey's idea of a properly-conducted tournament.

Aldridge Makes Second Home Run of His Major League Life in Beating Old Mates. Dead Heat in 5,000-Meter Race—Fuchs Admits Close Bleachers Were Blunders—Another Giants-Braves Swap.

VIC ALDRIDGE worked so hard to beat the Pirates yesterday that it will not be surprising if he reports to the Giant management, before his next turn to pitch arrives, with one of the sore arm complaints that Pittsburgh fans heard about so regularly while the Hoosier was pitching for the Pirates occasionally between holdouts.

Vic Aldridge

Vic sure was bearing down yesterday, and there isn't much doubt as to who was the happiest ball player in Greater New York last night when he thought of his 9-to-1 victory over the club that had traded him and the fact that he had also helped to humiliate the Pittsburgh pitchers by making a home run and two singles.

MORE power to Aldridge for all that he can do for himself and his new club. Pittsburgh fans do not begrudge him his victory.

But just the same, it is not very strongly probable that Manager Bush will be looking up Giant officials today trying to open negotiations whereby he can get Aldridge back in a second exchange for Grimes.

Grimes has won eight games and lost six and has figured in three other games as a relief pitcher, and his batting, fielding and spirit have made him one of the most valuable men on the local club. Aldridge has won two games, lost one and tied one. The only team he has beaten besides Pittsburgh is Philadelphia.

IT would not be doing full justice to one of the most noteworthy baseball happenings of the year, or of several years, if some special mention were not made of the home run that Aldridge blasted into the Giants' right field stand (257 feet 8 inches from the home plate at the foul line). It was his first home run in three years, or since 1925, and only his second in nine years in the National League. Vic never experienced the thrill of making a homer in 1917 or 1918, his first two years in fast company. The Cubs then shipped him to Los Angeles and brought him back in 1922, but only twice in all that time has Vic hit for the round trip.

Genewich Sent to Giants

BOSTON, June 16.—(AP.)—Joe Genewich of the pitching staff of the Boston Braves has been traded to the New York Giants in a trade which will bring to the Boston club three right-hand pitchers and a catcher, it has been announced here.

The New York players who will join the Braves are Virgil Barnes, Ben Cantwell and W. H. Claxton, pitchers, and Alfred Spohrer, catcher.

The trade was completed by President Emil E. Fuchs, of the Braves, who is in New York, late yesterday. Manager Rogers Hornsby, of the Braves, said the newly acquired players, who are expected to report here today, will fit into his plans in building up the Braves. With the exception of Barnes, all are youngsters.

Genewich has been with the Braves several seasons, but since his first year in Boston has not been a winning pitcher.

SCHENLEY WINS; KEEPS TITLE

Patsy Ragazzo's wild pitch in the eighth inning of the City League championship play-off game at Forbes Field yesterday, with two men on the bases gave Schenley an 8-to-6 victory and enabled the Beliefielders to retain the title they won last year. Previous to yesterday's clash each team had won one game of the annual three-game title series.

The contest was a ragged one, poor fielding and bad base running offsetting the heavy hitting of the two clubs. Langley came from behind to tie the score at six all in the seventh after trailing from the opening inning.

Lefty Bucek pitched a good game, despite poor support.

In a preliminary game, the Gladstone Junior High nine won the junior title, trouncing the Oliver Juniors, 20 to 4.

U. S. WOMEN STARS TRAIL IN CUP PLAY

BULLETIN.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 16.—(AP.)—England's Wightman team of women tennis players today increased its lead over the United States to three matches to one, Mrs. Holcroft Watson defeating Mrs. Molla Mallory, of the United States, in the first of today's matches, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 16.—(AP.)—The American women's tennis team defending the Wightman cup has encountered unexpected strength on the part of the British challengers on the world-famous bit of green turf known as the Wimbledon Center Court, and as a result emerged from three matches yesterday with only one victory.

The American players must now win three out of the four matches scheduled for today to retain the Wightman cup.

As was to be expected, yesterday's one victory came easily to Miss Helen Wills, 6-1, 6-2, in her match with Mrs. M. Holcroft Watson, of England. In the first singles match of the day, Mrs. Molla Mallory, veteran American player, had fallen before the graceful and accurate stroking of Miss Elleen Bennett, 6-1, 6-3.

After the singles matches came "the tea interval," and after that a surprise for the American defenders, who saw their doubles pair—Miss Eleanor Goss, team captain, and Miss Helen Jacobs—overwhelmed by Miss Ermyntrude Harvey, English leader, and Miss Peggy Saunders, a newcomer to the team this year.

Miss Harvey and Miss Saunders won by scores of 6-4, 6-1, to give England an advantage of one match on the day's play and a very comfortable feeling that her women had everything expected of them, for Miss Wills' victory virtually was conceded.

FANS FAIL TO ENTHUSE AS SHADE GETS VERDICT

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Dave Shade, veteran California slugger, won the judges' decision over George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight, in a 10-round bout at the Coney Island Stadium last night.

The decision failed to meet with the approval of the spectators.

A poll of ringside reporters failed to uphold the decision in which Referee Jack O'Sullivan and Judges Tom Flynn and George Kelly collaborated. A majority of the press box observers thought Shade deserved no better than a draw and many contended that the round by round score should have returned Courtney the winner.

Courtney was so incensed at the verdict that he refused to shake hands with Shade and raised his gloved hands in gestures of disgust.

The Giants find it quite easy to do business with the Braves when they are pressed, it would seem. All the trading for the current season had to be completed by midnight last night, but the New York officials, as usual, were able to do business with the Boston owners.

Be that as it may, the Pirates were not complaining today as they prepared to back up Ray Kremer in the Frenchman's quest for a victory over the Polo Grounders in the third fight of the series scheduled for this afternoon.

CHILLY SAUCE By CHILLY DOYLE

Sun-Telegraph Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Aldridge's victory over the Pirates yesterday was close to a masterpiece. Victor did not walk nor hit a batsman, and more than one Freebooter had a count of three balls and one strike. That kind of stuff is right in Firpo's alley when he is himself.

THE Hoosier schoolmaster retired 11 Buccos in succession after the start of the game. His wild pitch apparently was the result of a crossed signal with Bob O'Farrell. The heave had a direct bearing on the lone tally made by the Buccos.

HILL'S work was lamentable. Andy Cohen's opening hit was something of a flunker, but Bunker walked Welsh. Up came Lindstrom, who frowned on the bunt idea; instead Freddie walloped a double down the right field line that shook the Pirates' ship loose from its moorings. Jackson's round-tripper into the left field stands marked the close of Hill's trick for the day.

SUNNY JIM BOTTOMLEY put Bill McKechnie's scrappy Cardinals in first place in the fourteenth round of a terrific battle in the Flatbush. Sunny Jim socked a three-run homer over the right field wall to turn the trick. The Reds, meantime, were taking a trimming from the lowly Phillies.

THE Redbirds were all tuckered out when they got back to the hotel after the long jamboree with the Dodgers, but they were happy in the knowledge that they were sitting on top of all competitors.

BABE RUTH'S home-run activities naturally are the biggest events in the national pastime, but there are a lot of baseball stars who get a big kick out of the fact that a kid named Rabbit Maranville is keeping a guy named Tommy Thevenow full of splinters on the bench.

THE Redbirds have won 13 games out of 16 played since they left St. Louis. And Maranville's bright play has enlivened many of these contests.

THE Buccos didn't show much class in the second fight on the Polo Grounds, but the pitching display given by Hill was sufficient to dull the actions of the Pittsburghers. Aldridge, on the other hand, was in a beautiful stride.

THE Pirate-Giant series is as flat as a pancake so far as attendance is concerned. Not more than 15,000 witnessed the two games.

ETHEL LACKIE BEATEN IN FREE STYLE RACE

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—Ethel Lackie, star Illinois Women's Athletic Club swimmer, met her first defeat in the 100-meter free style last night when she was led by Mary Lou Quinn, a 16-year-old teammate, while qualifying for the Olympic tryouts at Rockaway Beach, N. Y.

The defeat, however, did not eliminate Miss Lackie, who is national and Olympic champion for women in the event, as two members will be sent to the tryouts by the I. W. A. C. Off to a quick getaway, Miss Quinn led Miss Lackie by a scant yard. Her time was 1:11, a second and a half slower than the champion's record.

New Marks May Be Set

By JESS CARVER.

WITH 1927 champions in 15 of the 17 events on hand to defend their laurels, a stellar outlay of track and field stars, including the leading collegiate and scholastic luminaries of the section, will compete in the annual A. M. A. championships at Schenley Oval this afternoon.

The only two champions crowned at last year's meet at the Pitt Stadium that will not be present today are McKnight, quarter-mile crown holder and Lieut. Orville (Tiny) Hewitt, former Pitt and West Point football star and weight stars, who won the hammer title last year.

The following champs will be on hand when the meet starts at 2 o'clock this afternoon:

TRACK EVENTS.
100-yard dash—Butler.
220-yard dash—Butler.
880-yard run—Rob Roy.
Mile run—Colclacer.
High hurdles—Campbell.
Low hurdles—Lewis.
Mile walk—Makagon.
Six-mile run—Tankins.
Mile relay—P. A. A. team.

FIELD EVENTS.
Broad jump—A. E. Rose.
High jump—Robusch.
Discus—Welch.
Pole vault—Robusch.
Shot—Welch.
Javelin—M. S. Angier.

Competition in every event is expected to be extraordinarily keen. Don Gwinn and Tiny Linn, Pitt aces, are going to make a hot fight for Hewitt's hammer title, and Bill Miller, Pete Bowen and Willie Billie Butler promises a gruelling duel in the quarter mile.

Bowen will set his course for three titles, hoping to win in the century, 220 and the 440. Welche will go after the shot, discus, broad jump and javelin. Rose will try for a new record in the broad jump, as will Angier in the javelin.

In Robusch, Angier, Rose, Welch, Bowen and Linn and Gwinn, the onlookers will glimpse Pittsburgh's leading Olympic team contenders. Rose and Angier were members of the 1924 and 1928 U. S. squads, respectively. Rose, Gwinn and Bowen are the most likely to win places on this year's team.

Critics anticipate at least eight broken records, with new marks possible in some 10 events.

BLACK MARIA FAVORITE

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—Victorian, Harry Payne Whitney's Preakness and Withers victor, goes to the post in the Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct today—but not as a favorite. That honor is reserved for Black Maria, largely because of Victorian's poor showing in the Belmont when he finished fifth in a six-horse race.

Black Maria was quoted at 3 to 1, with Victorian, coupled with Twitter as the Whitney entry, at 5 to 1.

Ten horses have been named to starte in the 1¼-mile classic, worth this year in the neighborhood of $17,500. In addition to Victorian, Twitter and Black Maria, Chance Shot, Brown Flash, Dangerous, Diavolo, Black Panther, File-Maker and Scapa Flow are scheduled to face the barrier.

Larry Benton on the slab did not throw any terror into the Pirates. Larry is the real sensation among National League pitchers this year, but if Kremer is as clever as he was in Philadelphia a few days ago the Pirates should be in the battle right up over their bootops.

There is a likelihood, too, that Manager Bush will put George Grantham back at his post today. Boots has been out of action three weeks with a broken finger. The injury has just about mended and the bat of the .400 clouter appears to be needed in the Pittsburgh attack.

Victor (Firpo) Aldridge gave his former buddies a sweet trimming at the Polo Grounds yesterday. Victor held the Freebooters to six hits with much glee, and then to rub it in, the Hoosier schoolmaster poled out three hits, including the second home run of his major league career, and he brought three counters across the plate. The score of the Pittsburgh reverse was 9 to 1.

Carmen Hill was an early casualty. Carmen was back in the Pirate dugout and through for the afternoon before the crowd was properly seated. The Corry giant was nicked for five runs in the first round, Lester Bartholomew taking his place with only one Giant retired.

NORRIS WILLIAMS LOSES IN STATE NET PLAY

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—(AP.)—Frank Shields, of New York, national junior champion, eliminated R. Norris Williams, Philadelphia, defending titleholder, 3-6, 6-3, 6-3, in the Pennsylvania and middle states tennis tournament.

By his victory young Shields earned the right to meet John Van Ryn, Princeton University, in the final round today. Van Ryn defeated John Doeg, Santa Monica, Cal., in the semi-finals, 6-2, 6-3.

JACK KATKISH IN COMEBACK

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Tele Sports Editor.

Jack Katkish is set for a comeback.

The welterweight boxer of Lawrenceville, who was going great guns in a knockout stride until he ran afoul of Jack Zivic, a former buddy, and made a miserable showing in a 10-round bout in Motor Square Garden several months ago, has bucked up and set his head high and made up his mind to get a new start and show the fans that h wasn't himself that night.

Katty's first bout along the comeback trail will be against Johnny Carey, of Erie, a good boxer and puncher, in the six-round semi-final to the 10-round windup between Phil Scello, of McKeesport, and Young Saylor, of Charlerol, at the Duquesne baseball park, Thursday night, June 28. He offered to box any bout on the card, even the opener, if necessary, to get started again, but Promoter Jules Beck figures he hasn't dropped that far down the scale, and, with his knockout punch, still will pack in the fans as at least a semi-finalist.

MUNN IN BOUT TODAY

BUENOS AIRES, June 16.—Monte Munn, Nebraska heavyweight, and Clemente Sanchez, of Cuba, will meet in a bout here today. Munn is a heavy favorite.

FIGHT RESULTS

At New York—Dave Shade defeated George Courtney, 10 rounds; Harold Mays defeated Benny Touchstone, 10 rounds; Willie Feldman defeated Babe McGorgary, 10 rounds.

At Long Branch, N. J.—Johnny Reno defeated Ben Stevins, 10 rounds.

At Hackensack, N. J.—Joe Schlocker defeated Joe Moresco, 8 rounds.

At Erie, Pa.—Cuddy DeMarco defeated Johnny Shupack, 10 rounds; Johnny Piaf knocked out Jim Decaupo, 6 rounds; Johnny Day defeated Ted Neil, 6 rounds.

At McCook, Neb.—Sidney (Kid) Belt won on foul over Frankie Larrabee, 7 rounds; Jack Dillon knocked out Jim Thayer, 3 rounds.

At Eau Claire, Wis.—Paul Milnar and Billy Aryton drew, 10 rounds.

At Tampa, Fla.—Young Sid Terris knocked out Sergt. Ray Willis, 3 rounds; Jim Beasley knocked out Joe Daniels, 3 rounds.

At LaGrange, Ga.—Ralph Taylor defeated Brady O'Hara, 10 rounds; K. O. Gordy knocked out Kid Miller, 6 rounds.

MAY CARD RACE FOR TURF STARS

CHICAGO, June 16.—(AP.)—A $50,000 stake race between the leading 3-year-olds of the nation may be run on one of the Chicago tracks this fall.

The rivals would be Reigh Count, winner of the Kentucky derby; Toro, blue ribbon winner of the American derby; Victorian, of the Preakness; Vito, of the Belmont stakes, and Misstep, winner of the Fairmount derby and runner-up in the Kentucky and American derbies.

Col. Matt J. Winn, of Lincoln Fields, and Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, president of the American National Jockey Club, are prepared to offer a rich purse and make every inducement to land the race for Chicago. John C. Shank, president of the Hawthorne Association, has stated his organization would be willing to put up $50,000 or more as a purse to attract the field to settle the question of 3-year-old supremacy.

Flying Cloud Is Leader of Indian Marathoners

UKIAH, Cal., June 16.—(AP.)—With a lead of about a dozen miles over his closest competitor, Flying Cloud, Karook Indian representing the Oregon cavemen, today continued trotting northward toward the half-way point in the 482-mile Redwood highway marathon between San Francisco and Grants Pass, Ore.

Flying Cloud was 11 miles north of here at 11 p. m. last night and 129 miles from Thursday's starting point. Crescent Feather, entered by the Crescent City Chamber of Commerce, was in second place. He reached Ukiah at 10:55 p. m.

Chief Ukiah, third among the 25 contestants still in the race, arrived here at 1' p. m. He held second place early in the night, but halted for two hours' rest a few miles south of here, allowing Crescent Feather to take the lead. Four Indians quit the race yesterday.

Here's Speedy Relief From Bunion Pains and Soft Corns

Get a two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) today. Every well stocked drug store has this, with the distinct understanding that your money will be cheerfully returned if it does not reduce the inflammation, soreness and pain much quicker than any remedy you ever used.

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the inflammation is gone.

And as for Soft Corns, a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with pads, shields, or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

McCulloch's 10 Convenient Drug Stores, and every good druggist, guarantees the first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.

LONG'S SPORT COMMENT

not happen very often, but it is one for the book when a pair of distance men wind up abreast in their final sprint after a grind of more than three miles.

Paavo Nurmi and Willie Ritola, Finland's flyers, both of whom are well known throughout the United States, met in a race of 5,000 meters (about 3.1 miles) at Helsingfors, Finland, and reports say the contest ended exactly in a dead heat. The time was 15:36 1-5. Both have done it under 15 minutes. It was the first time in four years that they had competed against each other.

OFFICIALS of the Boston National League Club refused to listen to older and more experienced baseball men before the season opened when they proceeded to ruin the biggest major league playing field in America by putting in bleachers that would make cheap home runs possible.

Emil E. Fuchs

In addition to hurting baseball itself, they have harmed their own club by their stubbornness, as the bleachers proved a boomerang. Forty-nine home runs have been made there to date, and only 15 of them were hit by the Braves against 34 by visiting teams.

NOW President Fuchs officially admits in the following public letter that the Boston club owners were wrong.

"The Boston club realizes that in its desire to have a more artistic ball park and to provide more seats for football and other events that it has made a grave error and is endeavoring as quickly as possible to remedy same by moving all the stands back.

"Pending that work, which already has been started, we will erect canvas screens 30-feet above the present top of the fence. We also realize that seats such as those existing with these stands are not conducive toward the proper playing of the national game on its merits.

"We have received a large number of protests and all that I can say is that I agree with them all and will endeavor to remedy the conditions as speedily as possible."

WHO said the Yankees didn't have tougher opposition this year? Why, only yesterday the Browns beat them in their fourth meeting of the season, and that's as often as the St. Louis club did that trick during the entire season of 1927.

ONCE again, the Giants and the Braves have "turned a trick." With a few hours to go before the time limit for inter-club trades in the National League would expire, the Giants turned to Judge Fuch's club last night, and in exchange for Virgil Barnes, the veteran of the Giant pitching staff, and Pitchers Clarkson and Cantwell and Catcher Al Spohrer, obtained Joe Genewich, rated an A-1 pitcher, who doubtless will prove a welcome addition to the none too potent New York mound corps.

The fans are going to regard the trade in about the same light they have become accustomed to viewing New York-Boston dealings. They will probably ask the same questions and will receive the same answers they have always received in the past—a sort of a merry "well, what are you going to do about it?"

Regardless of how much good any of the players involved do the respective clubs, one result of the trade is almost certain to be the conversion of more fans to the belief that the Braves and Giants are practically under one ownership.

SECOND PA. REVOLT CHECKED

By WILLIAM I. GRUNDISH,
Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—By nominating Senator Charles W. Curtis, of Kansas, for Vice President, the Republican party enhanced its chances of success more than 100 per cent. That seems to be the unanimous opinion of the delegates from Western Pennsylvania.

The move for a candidate from the Mississippi Valley was so strong that, unless he had been proposed by the leaders of the Pennsylvania delegation yesterday, the Mellon forces would have been face to face with their second revolt.

SERIOUS POSSIBILITIES

This second revolt would have been more serious than the first. The first was staged by Senator William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, who declared for Herbert Hoover in an effort to take from Secretary Mellon credit for the delegation's final stand.

Senator Vare, it developed, got his name into the papers, when a statement from Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, declared that Hoover is the choice of "the corrupt Philadelphia delegation," but, as a member of the resolutions committee, lost his plank for modification of the Volstead act when he secured only five votes, including his own; also lost his plank to aid his fight for a seat in the Senate by pledging the party to support him, and lost his tariff battle, trading a stringent plank for a sentence or two that does not mean anything.

One of the features of the convention was the ovation given to Secretary Mellon when he went to the platform to move the selection of committees to notify Hoover and Curtis that they had been selected on the ticket. The ovation and that given Curtis were the only spontaneous bits of applause in the course of this convention, so dead that nothing could be deader.

Romance, Beauty, Wealth; The Marriage of Avis Held All These

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Emily Day and Kitten are daughters of a worker in the Rossiter factory. Both are prevented by poverty from mingling with the socially elect of the little town. Emily has made an ideal of Kent Rossiter. Mary Nolan, whose father keeps a "speakeasy," is devoted to her. Mrs. Frances Halden, a wealthy interior decorator, takes an interest in her and tells her the only aristocracy is that of work. She gets a job with Mrs. Halden. Her father dies and Rossiter offers help which her mother declines. Avis Rossiter's father threatens to disinherit her unless she changes her ways. Great preperations are being made for Avis Rossiter's marriage.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SHE would remember a tall boy bending toward her in the moonlight, laughing eyes turning serious all at once and a voice saying her name.

A memory; a radiant fancy. But it had taught her what love could be. An incident probably forgotten by Kent Rossiter but one which would change all her life.

The newspaper began to print long accounts of grandeur. For the wedding there would be an altar of white orchids; Miss Rossiter was giving her bridesmaids bracelets of star-sapphires; the most famous orchestra in America would play the march.

The bridal gown was coming direct from Paris but the veil would be old lace worn by many generations of Rossiter brides.

There it was again Emily reflected. Not only wealth but ancestry. Your great-great-grandmother made you somebody. If blue ran in your veins you could get away with anything, even a love affair with a Nolan, and be married afterward like this.

Mrs. Briggs brought over one of the cakes from a pre-wedding festivity and told a shocked tale of the bride-elect.

"She says to the Mister she'd be damned—excuse me, Mrs. Day, dear—an' she'd not go through with it. An' he says, 'Very well, it's that or the ranch,' meaning' his place out west somewheres, mind you.

"She took on somethin' terrible but she'll be married all right.

"An' didn't the Grainger baggage step up a-grinnin'. 'Buck up, ol' thing' says she, tough-like. 'A married lady can get away with murder these days,' says she."

Emily thought, curiously, 'Why, it isn't a wedding at all! It's just a beautiful play they go through, everyone doing a part, meaning nothing by it. Nothing fine in that. And I've been sort of envying her. "Well—"

The next day the Lyall Star said Kent had come home to be Van Alstyne's best man.

Emily caught sight of his name as the paper lay folded on the news stand and her heart went pounding into her throat. She fumbled for coins, put them down with her fingers shaking—carried the paper home.

When she had locked her door she read the item again. Only a line or two; young Mr. Rossiter would leave directly after the wedding for Paris where he was entering the Sorbonne. He had been absent from Lyall, excepting for short visits, nearly six years.

He was coming—he was coming! Would she see him, perhaps? Catch a glimpse of him one day as he went past the shop? Would he know her if they came face to face?

She said "Oh"—dimly, and clipped the item. The Japanese box was nearly filled now! She thought that she must get a larger one soon.

On the night of the wedding she coaxed Kitten to walk out the River Road. There were guards by the gateway at Highcliffe and little could be seen save people moving past lighted windows.

Others watched from across the street, and the girls stopped there. They heard the wedding march quite clearly; Emily thought, "Now he is waiting by the altar—" "Now he is giving them the ring—" "Now he is smiling—"

Kitten grumbled, "Gee, wish we could get a look at her. Eight bridesmaids!"

"Oh—bridesmaids—"

Eventually motors rolled away and the watchers went too. For better or worse, till death—or divorce—did them part, Avis Rossiter and Dirk Van Alstyne were married now. The pageant was over.

"That's that. C'mon, Em, what you waiting for? Nothing in your young life what's going on over there."

"No, nothing in my young life."

CHAPTER XXIII.

EMILY believed that, of course. Nothing had happened or could happen tonight or ever behind the tall gates of Highcliffe might tip the scales of her life by so much as a hair's breadth. Avis was married and gone; the show was over. She walked away with her sister, not glancing around.

Romance, beauty—oh, a high and holy thing back there. But she had no part in it. Nothing in her young life . . .

So she thought. And she went home and went to bed.

Nevertheless beyond those gates that happened which was to go winding into the years ahead; not a great thing, but one surely to become so great as to sweep the course of existence into new and incredible ways for many, Emily among the rest.

Marilee Grainger, as an intimate friend of the Rossiters—indeed as almost a member of the family—lingered after the guests had departed. And when finally she set out to walk through the grounds toward home, Kent went with her.

They loitered in the June night, taking the long way around by the pergola. Marilee stopped by the stone bench and sat down; after a moment Kent dropped beside her, rather wearily.

She had been chatting in a bright, vivacious way, but now she fell silent. He struck a match for her cigaret and the light, flaring up, brought her face very close to his—showed her eyes, half smiling, with a waiting look.

It was more than a rumor that Kent was expected some day to marry Marilee. They had grown up together; all their lives they had known the same people, gone the same places, done the same things. By the time they had reached their middle teens everyone was pairing them.

"You've invited Miss Grainger? That meant Kent Rossiter, then—"

"Kent is coming? Have to include Marilee—"

Never a word had been spoken between them, but Kent when he thought of it at all, regarded this as a formality. His father, he knew, looked upon the thing as settled; Marilee's father and his own had been boyhood friends.

Marilee aroused no especial emotion in him. He sometimes felt a distaste for her eternal cigarets and her manner of wearing too revealing clothes and her ability to swear like a truck-driver when she was angry.

But since she was one he always had taken for granted, he gave these things little thought.

BUGS BAER Says

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

KANSAS CITY, June 16.—The convention is ended.

But the malady lingers on.

Dr. Butler will tour the West delivering his famous lecture: "Every shad has a plank."

Republicans finally squared the farmers by promising to blame everything on the next administration.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

The robbing of a Kansas City bank suggested the idea that some Chicago delegate had combined pleasure with business.

Curtis will fill the vacancy that was emptied by Dawes.

The Republican ticket was chosen in the following order:

President.

The Senate page boys.

Vice President.

Residents of the Mississippi Valley are fleeing to the hills. A 20-foot wave of discarded badges is sweeping down the stream.

After watching the delegate squirrels in Kansas City we advise the Houston chairman to discard his gavel and use a nutcracker.

The farmers went back home, sadder but dumber.

What the clover kickers can't figure out is why the government spends millions to eradicate the Japanese beetle and deliberately encourages Republicans.

After having been removed gently for the second time in four years, Mr. Lowden remarked, "I must be the inflamed tonsils of this party."

Hoover will not talk during the Presidential campaign. He is a Socrates without a sock.

The last seen of Dr. Butler he was going back to college.

Curtis is a farmer from the Sunflower State. Which makes a bad bouquet if Hoover is a morning glory.

Having had four years in the White House, Dawes is still for the good of the party. He said, "I will give Mr. Hoover the benefit of my experience. I will teach him how to smoke a pipe."

CAR POLL FAVORS SMITH

SMITH—37.
HOOVER—20.

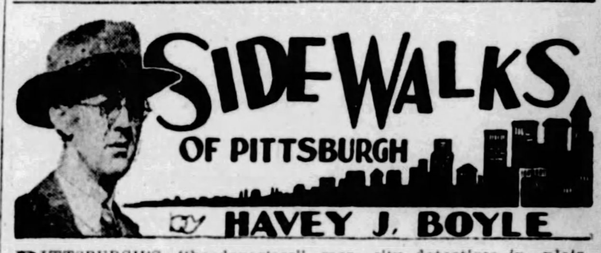
Smith was practically a two-to-one favorite over Hoover in The Sun-Telegraph's straw vote taken on a number of street cars.

The following routes were sampled: No. 7, Charles street; No. 22, Crosstown; No. 40, Mt. Washington; No. 48, Arlington avenue; No. 50, Carson street; No. 73, Highland Park; No. 75, East Liberty and Wilkinsburg; No. 82, Lincoln avenue, and No. 86, Frankstown avenue. Of those approached, 37 indicated they would vote for Smith and 20 for Hoover.

The total straw vote count being taken by The Sun-Telegraph, and showing the wide variety of fields covered, gives the following tabulation:

	Hoover	Smith
Oliver Building	267	167
Westinghouse Plant	302	209
Ohio Street	131	202
Imperial	23	32
City-County Building	75	50
Seventh Street	123	117
Medical Profession	63	38
Strip District	38	157
East Liberty	129	77
Street Cars	20	37
Totals	1,303	1,197

Among those balloting on the street cars, 39 said they voted for Coolidge in 1924 and two voted for Davis. This gives a total, in the straw vote list, of 1,442 for Coolidge in 1924 and 287 for Davis. A total of 41 persons have expressed their preference for Coolidge and indicated they would vote that way.



PITTSBURGH'S "headquarters" men, city detectives in plain clothes, rank with the best of the country's sleuths. The staff is made up of men of long and varied experience. Not a few specialists are in the group. Some of them can size up a job and come close to naming the gang responsible—from the methods employed. Usually the detectives travel in pairs. They keep on the move and have a knack for being handy where trouble is brewing. All of their work is not concerned with making arrests. Often, a nod from the head of a detective to a crook, with a record, will remove the crook from immediate temptation. A pickpocket, moving in a large crowd, does a little scurrying when he sees a headquarters man eyeing him contemplatively. It is not unusual for other cities to call on some of Pittsburgh's sleuths to aid them in policing a great convention.

Minute observation of crimes and criminals help make the detective proficient. In some cases there is a wealth of detail to be looked into. For work of prolonged investigation and complete reports the police branch has called from newspaper work a reporter or two.

IN SPITE of the legends spun in story book and play, the average detective would be as much at sea in donning a set of false whiskers as would the main aisle collector in a church. Nor do many of the local sleuths resort to having a mole painted on their cheeks to effect a disguise. In fact, they don't disguise at all. It is also necessary to report that in only a few cases have the city's Sherlocks solved a case by recognizing a faint odor of perfume or by studying the cigar ashes carelessly dropped in the library where the body was found. In most cases it is nothing but hard, routine work that at last brings the fugutive to book.

The average citizen looks upon the policeman in uniform as his sole protection, but in the downtown section a sharp whistle would bring a couple of well-dressed, robust gentlemen to the scene at once.

A VERY legal-looking document, with the ominous word "Subpena" written on it, and in type that is a replica of the type used by Uncle Samuel in calling in witnesses to the Federal Court, was passed around to a large group of gentlemen in a downtown restaurant yesterday. One or two of the gentlemen gave a visible start, scanned nervously the paper, and then laughed aloud. It happened to be an invitation to the luncheon today of the Poison Shooters and some wag had the invitations made up just like a summons from the United States Court. Considering recent happenings in connection with subpenas it was a good idea, even if it did produce hot flashes and some misgivings for a moment.

Who ever put the invitation on our typewriter, with the word subpena showing quite prominently, will always be viewed as a scoundrel. We like clean fun, and stand for sporty cricket at all times, but there is a limit to everything. Not that we were worried—just the principle of the thing.

John Ward is back in town for a few days. John left Pittsburgh three years ago to sell real estate in Florida, having grown a little indifferent about the state of journalism in our fair city. It was in spite and not because of John's descent upon Miami that real estate shortly afterward began doing a Kellerman. But John weathered the storm, is still doing business at the old stand, and comes back with glowing reports of his adopted city and state. As a sample of how things have returned to normalcy, John reports that the house he rented for $160 a month when he first moved to Miami now rents for $14 a month.

Incidentally, John has two pretty and talented sisters in a musical affair at the Grand this week.

Save for the fact there was no horse on the ground near him, John, in Miami-flavored clothing, suggested the Prince of Wales.

London's Ancient Charter

THE charter of the City of London was granted by King John on May 19, 1214. It authorized the election of a mayor annually and provided also for a governing council.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS

MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE! LOVE!!!

by FRANK L. PACKARD

Bob Makes His Escape to The Cliffs and Makes His Way to the Alita

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

The body of Tom Kingsley is picked up by Capt. "Scarface" Sweeney and his mate, Marlow, off Singapore. Tom's brother, Robert, also an old "sea dog," is notified of the death and receives articles found on the corpse. Among these are two small but handsomely carved Ivory Idols. Robert Kingsley has good reason to believe that Hsi Yan, an ancient enemy, has returned after 30 years to seek vengeance. The Idols are stolen and Young Bob starts out to recover them. After many adventures Bob and Verna Lyle are both prisoners at Richardson's plantation. The Malay whom Bob had rescued plans Verna's and Bob's escape.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

A HALF HOUR passed, and in the darkness the going was far from easy, for save for a few open spaces here and there, that they were obliged to traverse, the two Malays kept to the woods. And then the moon came out, and its light, filtering through the branches, caused Bob Kingsley to be less rudely and less frequently bumped against the tree trunks, and the two Malays to stumble less frequently in the entangling undergrowth.

At times ou and Nissan laid the hammock down on the ground for a moment or two to rest—and at these moments Bob Kingsley cursed fervently the irons that made of him a helpless burden and impeded progress. But for the most part, he had lain there silently in the hammock, engaged in listening as tensely as he had listened a little while ago in the shed. He had not been much concerned with the chance of any alarm being raised by the native servants around the house—Verna might walk in the woods for an hour, or two hours, if she liked, without any thought of her entering their heads. They were not in the habit of questioning the comings and goings of white people. It was Richardson's return from the beach where the Monona had gone down on the Baalu Reef that he had feared. Richardson would hardly stay there after dark—perhaps not that long, for it was a two hours' return journey to Aoru. On the one hand, Richardson might not be back for an hour or more yet; on the other, if Richardson had started from the beach before the light failed he might be expected to reach his house at any moment. Therefore, he, Bob Kingsley, had been constantly on the qui vive from the moment he had begun his flight. But now, with the moon up, and better progress being made, and already far from Aoru, he was relieved to a large extent. He had heard nothing to indicate that Verna had been missed or his escape discovered, and there had certainly been no sound of pursuit.

Still another half hour passed—and then suddenly Tifu halted.

"Tuan," he said, "we are almost at the cliff, but we have come more quickly than Nanu, for he is only a little way in front of us, and he has heard us, and is coming to us now. Also, Tuan, some one comes after us from behind, who, because there is the step of only one man, and because he runs swiftly, can be no other than Kafan."

Bob Kingsley nodded.

"Good enough!" he said heartily—but the next instant his complacency was suddenly and rudely shattered.

Nanu and Kafan arrived from opposite directions at almost the same moment, were standing beside him—and Kafan burst at once into fierce, excited speech, panting out his words, gasping for his breath. Bob Kingsley could not understand all the man said; he was no master of the Malay tongue, and, besides, the man's speech was labored now and broken—but he caught the gist of it: As Kafan had crossed a small, open moonlit space a short distance behind, he had looked back and seen the figures of several men, who had apparently been following him, dodge back among the trees. Up to that time, Kafan explained, he had not been traveling fast, for he knew that Tifu could be overtaken without effort, but after that he had run until the wind was out of his body that he might bring warning to the Tuan.

Bob Kingsley was sitting erect now in the hammock. And now his questions came with the rapidity and staccato-like snap of machine-gun fire:

"Could you see who they were? Were they natives from the campong?. Were they white men? Or were there white men among the natives?"

"Tuan," Kafan answered in Malay, "one only I saw well, for shadows hid the others. But the one I saw was the yellow man with the nose that is not straight, who steered the boat in which the Tuan and I, Kafan, with him, came from the ship."

"My God! Chen-shu!" The words came from Bob Kingsley in a single breath. The man had lost no time! Here was a grim enough justification for what he, Bob Kingsley, had done that night! It was apparent now that it had obviously been little more than the flip of a coin whether Chen-shu or Namu would get Verna first. Chen-shu must have discovered that Verna was gone; then, possibly, seeing Kafan near the shed, and possibly discovering that he, Bob Kingsley, had escaped. Chen-shu, knowing that Kafan and he, Bob Kingsley, had been together in the boat, had put two and two together and had followed Kafan. Yes, that was it! In details it might be inaccurate, but in the main it could not be any other way. The mind works swiftly—there scarcely seemed to have been a pause since he had first spoken. "Quick!" he ordered. "Go on, Tifu! Nanu, show us the way to where you left the others, but keep beside me so that I can talk to you!"

The hammock started forward again—the bearers breaking into a jog-trot that was as near a run as they could accomplish.

"Nanu," said Bob Kingsley crisply, "acording to Kafan, the Chinamen that seek Miss Lyle are close behind us, and, if they can help it, they will not let us escape. How far is it exactly from here to the Alita, and what is this cliff that you and Tifu talk about?"

"The Alita lies a quarter of a mile at sea below the cliff, Tuan," Nanu answered; "and what the cliff is, the Tuan will now see for himself, for we are almost there. We were already among the trees just at the edge of the cliff where the path leads downward to the beach, when we heard the Tuan coming, and so we waited there."

"It sounds to me, then, that they could rake us with shots from the head of the path or from the top of the cliff on either side;" exclaimed Kingsley grimly.

"From the head of the path, perhaps," replied Nanu quickly, "though it turns many times and is very steep. But from the top of the cliffs, no, Tuan. On neither side can the beach be seen, for the beach is very narrow and the cliffs recede far backward, and I do not think any place could be found where a man could crawl outward upon the sloping ledges to fire downward upon the beach. It is a strange place, Tuan, for the way down is but a twisted crack in the walls of rock, as though at some great trembling of the earth the walls had been split apart. It is very dangerous, and very hard to travel, Tuan, and there are places where, if a man fell, he would never speak again."

CHAPTER XXXII.

"VERY well then," decided Bob Kingsley instantly, "we'll hold the top of the path—or, at least, I will," he added with a grim smile. "From what you say, I fancy it's a bit of a nasty matter getting down to the beach, and if you had to carry two people, you'd be in a proper fix. On top of that, the schooner's boat, which, naturally, I suppose you've left on the shore, wouldn't hold us all. You'd have to make two trips, and they'd have a chance to pot those left on the beach, and those going out in the boat. These, then, are my orders, Nanu: and you, too, Tifu, will give heed to what I will say. I will take the other revolver, Nanu, that Tifu says you have got, and Tifu and Kafan will load it for me, and we will lie behind the rocks and keep the head of the path. In the meantime you are to get Miss Lyle aboard the schooner at once. When that is done, send Nissan back to us with the boat; we will then be four, you will still have enough men to handle the schooner if things go badly here, and—— But we'll let all that take care of itself when the time comes! You, Nanu, are not to return! I have already told you that if I run out of luck you'll have to sail the Alita to Singapore."

"But why cannot I take the Tuan's place at the head of the path?" protested Nanu anxiously. "The Tuan sails the Alita as no other man sails her."

"Because it's my job," Bob Kingsley answered with finality. "Because you don't have to be carried; because Miss Lyle counts first of all, and no chances can be taken, and no time can be lost. You understand, Nanu? You are to start down for the beach the moment we reach Miss Lyle!"

"I understand, Tuan," Nanu answered heavily. "And it shall be as the Tuan orders, but I wish it were not so."

"Never mind about that!" Bob Kingsley was biting off his words now. "Hand that other revolver to Tifu—one's all that I can manage at a time with these damned bracelets! Good Lord, how much farther is it? You said we were close to the place!"

"Even so, Tuan," replied Nanu, "and it—" His words ended in a startled gasp, as suddenly and in rapid succession there came the reports of several revolver shots.

Bob Kingsley's face was white, as he reached out his manacled hand and caught Nanu's arm.

"Those shots came from over there to the right, and a little ahead of us!" he said tensely. "Have they worked in around us—got there before we have?"

"No, Tuan," Nanu answered, "for see, we are here! But the shots were very close."

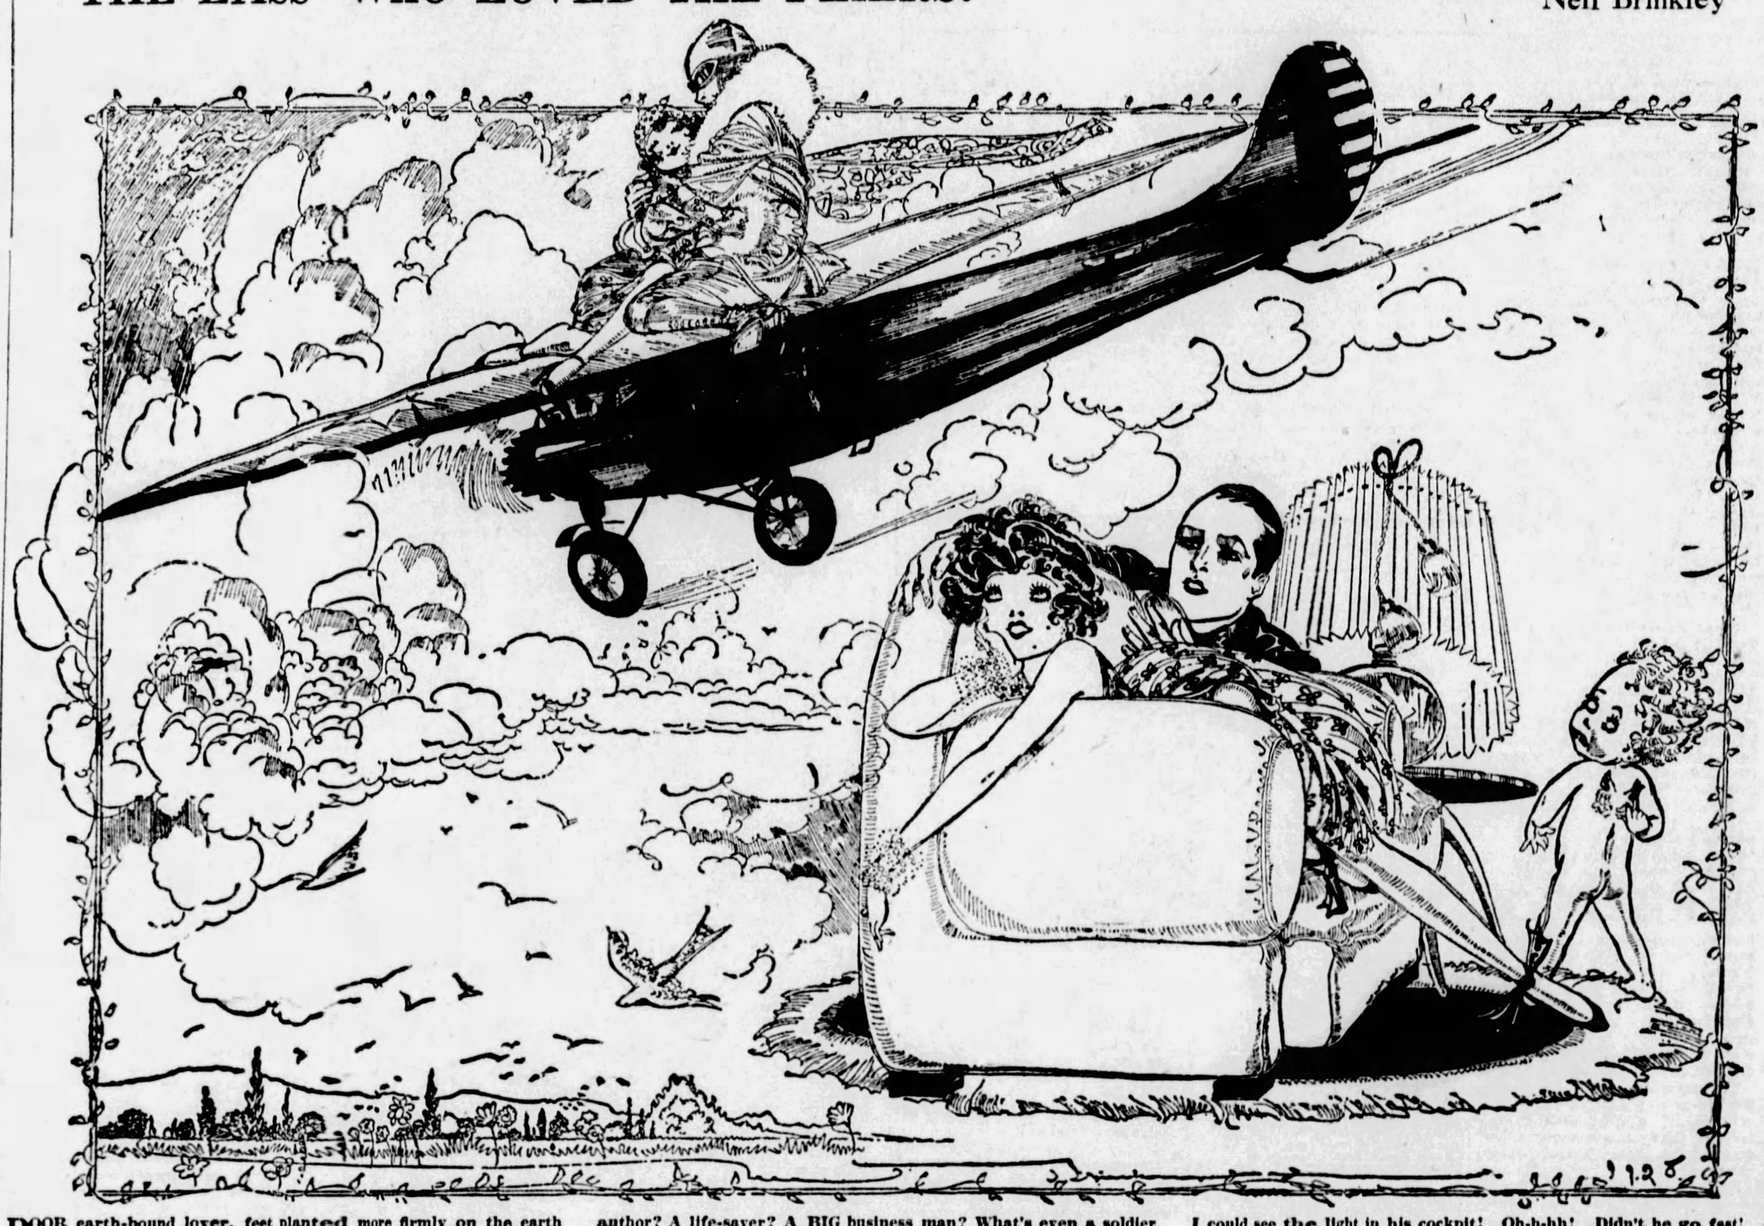
"THE LASS WHO LOVED THE FLIERS!"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley



POOR earth-bound lover, feet planted more firmly on the earth than any bug; 'cause a bug has wings! He stands no more chance against the whirling, dashing romance of these new knights that have taken to the sky so thickly, like eaglets bound for the sun, than the blade of fox-grass does against the mighty wind of the propeller. One stands wistfully caught in the other's dust; and the other is flattened by the other's passing. It's all the same.

A football hero, did you say? What's that? A poet? An author? A life-saver? A BIG business man? What's even a soldier or a sailor to the lass who runs out and leaves her supper cold when the roar of the night air mail from Detroit grows in the sky? Who waves her napkin and kisses her hands frantically in the dark, a little figure jumping up and down in the blackness of a back-garden at the red and green stars traversing so swiftly, high up, the star-spangled sky. Who falls into her chair with her eyes shining when the thrilling hum has died away and sighs to her petrified family, "Oh-h-hh! I almost saw the pilot himself tonight. I could see the light in his cockpit! Oh-h-hh! Didn't he go fast! I don't know him, but he's the most romantic thing in the world. THINK of flying the night-sky with the MAIL. I wish he knew I saw him! Oh-h-hh!" And doesn't eat any dessert!

What chance has a fellow with his two feet glued to the earth against that? This is the day of the knight of the sky! Long life to him—safety—fame—honor. Cupid himself says, "I better sprout bigger, better wings. My cruising radius and my altitude are nil."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Mary Tells Madge She "Must Not" See Noel

MARY gave me no chance to reply to her assertion that she had seen Noel drive in and knew why I had come to her room.

"He's come after the Lincoln damsel," she hurried on—"I hear he's her shadow nowadays—and you want me to come down to entertain him while the young woman finishes her lesson. Now, I love you, Auntie Madge, but—nothing cooking—absolutely—positively, in that line."

I wanted to laugh at her absurdity, but I could see a tiny quivering of muscles under her smooth cheek which warned me of nerves tautly strung, and I made my voice matter-of-fact and nonchalant as I answered.

"On the contrary, Mary, he didn't know Miss Lincoln was here. He came in like a whirlwind, saying he must see you, and that this was the first chance he'd had to get here. He was most excited and insistent so I hurried up to deliver his message. Mrs. Underwood is talking to him on the veranda, and perhaps she'll be able to keep him calm until you get down."

As if some hidden gnome suddenly had turned a switch, Mary's lovely eyes were all at once starry gleaming lights. Then the lights went out again and they were lustreless tired eyes which looked out at me from a face etched with the lines which heartache brings.

"Then that's all the more reason I mustn't see him," she said tonelessly.

"Mustn't, Mary," I repeated. "That's a queer way of putting it. What do you mean?"

She started and shot a quick, furtive glance at me. But I was carefully avoiding a direct glance at her, although from under my lashes I was aware of every change in her expression.

"That is a silly way of putting it," she said with apparent carelessness. "What I really meant was that he's so sort of rushing and insistent upon having his own way about things, that I don't want to let myself get upset by his talk. I really mustn't, Auntie Madge. I've got so much studying to do. So there's no use his teasing. I can't see him."

"You mean you won't," I said as my irritation momentarily triumphed over my sympathy for her evident suffering.

"If you'd rather put it that way, yes," she retorted. Mary's reaction to reprof, implied or open, is never a particularly patient one. But there was a decision in her voice which I knew it was useless to combat.

"Very well," I said a trifle stiffly. "I'll tell him you do not wish to see him."

I turned to the door, but before I reached it Mary flung herself upon me and hugging me tightly, pressed her hot cheek against mine.

"Please don't be mad at me, Auntie Madge," she choked. "Honest, I'm not half as mean as I sound. But I can't see Noel. I can't, I can't."

She was near tempestuous tears and I hastened to end a scene which evidently was trying her sorely.

"I'm not angry at you, silly child!" I said, giving her a hasty kiss and releasing myself from her impetuous embrace. "And it is your undeniable privilege to refuse to see the young man if you wish."

She put her hand up to her throat as if something were choking her.

"Yes, I suppose that is my undeniable privilege," she repeated slowly, but I recognized mockery and something more serious in her voice.

Longer Skirts

Many of the smarter houses are showing all frocks with a definitely longer skirt. Although some of the shops are playing safe by keeping the skirt short in spots, many of them permit an even hemline a number of inches longer than the general run of frocks.

A New Effect

Along with diagonal lines comes a new version of this becoming trend. Ruffles, flounces, even fur, are applied in spiral fashion to the skirt. This gives the desired effect, in a new and interesting manner.

Horoscopes

Sunday, June 17

SUNDAY'S horoscope points to unusual circumstances and conditions, difficult to decipher. Affairs may be stirring, despite stubborn obstacles. New projects and employment may be affected but favorably if an unyielding ground be held. Personal popularity may effect this.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a significant year, with much of the eventful and stirring. New ventures and employment should thrive if well directed and assisted by personal popularity and appeal. A child born on this day may have many graces and personal talents which may assist it out of stubborn and difficult situations. It may have an eventful career.

Be steadfast as a tower that does not bend its stately summit to the tempest's shock.—DANTE.

Monday, June 18

A LIVELY and particularly stirring day is forecast from the movements of important planets. These indicate change of a sudden nature, far-reaching and radical. It is probable that they relate to entirely new ventures or ambitions.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unforeseen and stirring events, with change and new ventures. These should prosper if not too carelessly embraced and if there be no loopholes for misunderstanding or fraud. A child born on this day may be restless and unsettled in disposition but may be capable of occupying important position or one in diplomatic service or with large corporations. It may be ambitious and have singular insight.

His own character is the arbiter of every one's fortune.—SYRUS.

Color Contrasts

I have noticed a great deal of color contrast in some of the newest costumes. And I mean just that. For a bright-red blouse is often worn with a beige or gray ensemble—and with stunning effect—or green with gray, and so on. Of course, one must have great taste and discrimination in selecting any costume on this order.

Banks Supported Stocks But Unloading Expected

By B. C. FORBES

MY guess is that speculative stocks will sell lower sometime between now and November 6.

The collapse early in the week was followed by a recovery more impressive than is usual in such circumstances. It was made evident that a great many small holders of stocks had paid for them outright or had put up very substantial margins. Also, quite extensive support came from pools. Banks, too, rushed in to check utter demoralization. The rebound was stimulated, of course, by bears who had sold short.

BUT whenever you have a market which has to be bolstered up by conservative bankers, you must be prepared for reselling of the stocks thus purchased. The first paralytic shock seldom is fatal to a human being; later ones usually are. So is it often with a stock market which has become notoriously unhealthy. No stock market can be regarded as healthy when it yields to purchasers less dividend income than the daily cost of money. Do you know that the average yield on representative industrial stocks got down to 4½ per cent? This is one-half of 1 per cent less than the yield on industrial bonds and compares with a return on industrial stocks of 8½ per cent in 1920.

If that does not spell DANGER, then the laws of logic have been repealed.

WHEN I visited California early this year I was astounded to find the extent of the feverish speculation in the Giannini bank stocks, Bancitaly Corporation and Bank of Italy. It appeared to me as if many of the people of modest means had gone crazy. They had the idea that if only they could, by any means under the sun, get a few shares of Giannini stock, they would be made rich for the rest of their lives. In speeches and in this column I strongly advised against buying these stocks on margin—an attitude, let it be said in all fairness, which A. P. Giannini himself was advocating. But it was notorious that money lenders were getting anywhere from 12 per cent to 15 per cent on Giannini stock collateral, accepted at only half of its quoted value.

The crash of this week, when Bancitaly dropped $113 and Bank of Italy $132 a share on one day, reveals that margin speculation must have been tremendously rampant.

When writing about the Giannini stocks I recall using the phrase "No tree ever quite reaches heaven."

The same reminder applies to not a few stocks in Wall street today.

HERE'S something new. San Antonio, the largest city in Texas, this week held a "fifty million dollar dinner." It was tendered to the Mayor, the Chamber of Commerce and business citizens in general by concerns that were attracted to San Antonio during the last few years and that have done so well that their properties now represent a value of $50,000,000. The newer-comers "sold" the city to the old-timers.

There are other cities that need to be "sold" to the old-timers. An enormous number of fortunes, from modest to gigantic size, are being made, not by natives but by men from the outside who saw the possibilities of certain cities, located there, seized opportunities and started to climb toward millionafredom.

WILLIAM FILENE'S SONS COMPANY, of Boston, is this summer granting long vacations with full pay to employes who want to visit Europe. Says Edward A. Filene, the nationally-known progressive merchant:

"We have found in the past that European travel increases the value of an employe. Now we are prepared to make such trips possible for all grades of employes. Moreover, when understanding exists generally between individuals of two nations, goodwill usually follows."

ONCE in a while you meet a friend who is candid enough to confess, after having tried flying, "I was scared to death." From a nationally-known business man who had just completed a trans-continental trip by air I have received this frank letter:

"One likes to try most things once, so I tried a transcontinental flight. But I'm convinced it is much too hazardous to repeat this long journey often. I do not mean that the airways are not safe, but I do mean that they are not known well enough to warrant promiscuous transcontinental trips. Your pilot has a compass and map, but they amount to little when you really get lost. You may start with perfect weather, but during a 3,000-mile journey you are almost bound to encounter bad weather. Bad weather brings confusion, and you lose your way.

"From the time we left Cheyenne until we reached Salt Lake City we were over rugged snow-capped mountain peaks with no place whatever to light. Your altitude gauge tells you how many feet you are above sea level, but if we bump into a peak 14,000 feet—well, it is too bad. And when you have only 35 gallons of gas left and not within sight of a landing place, it is a little upsetting, to say the least."

High flying—in the air and in Wall street—may be all right for bold adventurers, but it does have its peril.

STOCKS START DOWN GRADE AT OPENING

NEW YORK, June 16.—(AP.)—The line of least resistance at the opening of today's market was downward. Initial declines of a point or so were recorded by U. S. Steel, Consolidated Gas, Hudson Motors and International Telephone. Gold Dust and Atchison each opened about a point higher.

Early selling appeared to be a continuation of the "secondary reaction" which started yesterday. There was nothing in the overnight news developments to explain the liquidation, although it was apparent that stocks bought earlier in the week for supporting purposes were being thrown back into the market. Several of the leaders broke below the low prices reached in Thursday's drastic reaction.

Radio climbed 1¾ points to 168 at the start and then quickly slumped to 160½. Wright Aeronautical broke 6 points to 138 and Dupont recorded a similar loss at 360. The first sale of Montgomery-Ward was a block of 11,000 shares at 140, off 1⅝.

Selling was particularly effective against the motors, General Motors, Packard, Nash and Graham-Paige all yielding a point or more. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies and Curtiss also recorded substantial losses.

Foreign exchanges opened irregular, with sterling cables quoted 1-16 of a point lower at $4.88 3-16.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PITTSBURGH people may be given another opportunity to share in the ownership of one of the city's large retail organizations within the next few weeks. A local brokerage house is expected to offer a block of the stock of Reymer & Bros., Inc.

The company operates 11 confectionery stores and tea rooms, besides a large number of cigar stands located in most of the leading office buildings in the business district. In addition to its retail business, Reymers are manufacturers of candy and have a large wholesale distribution of their products in the Pittsburgh district. A new restaurant and tea room was recently opened in the Clark Building.

The company is distinctly a Pittsburgh enterprise, making its chief products here, employing Pittsburgh people and having its distribution in the same area.

FEW people here realize how soon the airplane is destined to play an important part in our daily lives and the extent to which Pittsburgh is lagging behind some other cities in air craft development. If you happen to visit Detroit go out to the Ford airport and see the transportation facilities which will be duplicated here after suitable landing fields are provided.

There, air travel has been taken out of the novelty class. It has become a commonplace, everyday fact. A regular scheduled service is in operation between Detroit and Cleveland. Giant, all-metal, tri-motored planes are in use. People board planes as casually as we use street cars. Sight-seeing planes also leave the field, but this is only a temporary angle which is not of paramount importance. Aviation in Detroit is rapidly changing a county fair thrill to a public utility.

THERE is great danger of too much enthusiasm about aviation. Extreme caution should be shown in investing in the infant industry. Air travel and air express are here to stay, but the day has not come when everyone who now owns an automobile must also own an airplane. That time may come, but not until air craft are very different from the present models.

There are now more companies making airplanes than there are manufacturers of automobiles. The history of the automobile industry, to a great extent, will be repeated in the air plane industry. A few well managed companies with the proper resources will be successful and will make fortunes for the owners. This happened in the motor car industry, but many manufacturers of 15 or 20 years ago have passed into oblivion. This, too, will be repeated in the air industry.

THE summer depression in the steel business is becoming more pronounced. Buyers have shown little inclination to make contracts for third quarter delivery. The new price of 1.90 cents a pound for bars, plates and shapes has not been tested by actual sales. Production has slumped to 70 per cent of capacity. Carnegie Steel Company has placed three blast furnaces on the inactive list.

Pig iron prices have shown further weakness and are at the lowest levels in over a decade. Scrap prices recently declined 50 cents a ton. Sheet makers are operating at slightly more than 70 per cent capacity. Pipe and wire mills are at 60 per cent. Tin plate makers are the most active with production of over 90 per cent.

BUILDING activity in this district is proceeding at a high rate, although the total for the year up to the end of May is not as great as in the same period of 1927.

New building started in Western Pennsylvania in May amounted to $14,495,500, according to statistics compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was 5 per cent greater than in May of last year, but it was 25 per cent less than in April of this year.

The total of new building started in the first five months of this year was $74,018,500, which was a decrease of 16 per cent from the same months of 1927.

THE proposed expenditure of over $13,000,000 on public works alone, which will be made if the county bond issue is approved, will be equivalent to nearly three months' construction work of all kinds in this half of the state. When it is remembered that all this will be spent in Allegheny county the extent to which it will stimulate employment and business can be fully realized.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, June 16.—Influenced by favorable weather in the spring wheat belt both north and south of the Canadian line, wheat values took an early swing downward. Reports of rain in the Southwest, however, were of considerable effect in halting the setbacks in price. Opening 4c to 1¾c off, wheat subsequently held near to the initial range. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, with corn starting at 1c to ½c decline, and afterward gaining a little more.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

COUNTY OF ALLEGHENY PENNSYLVANIA NOTICE OF SPECIAL ELECTION of the County of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, ON INCREASE OF INDEBTEDNESS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the electors of the County of Allegheny, Pennsylvania, in pursuance and by authority of resolutions duly adopted at regular meetings of the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, held on the 23rd and 24th days of May, 1928, that a special public election will be held on Tuesday, the 26th Day of June, 1928, between the hours of 7 A. M. and 7 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the usual polling places for holding municipal elections in said County of Allegheny, for the purpose of obtaining the assent of the electors of the County of Allegheny to various increases in the indebtedness of the County as hereinafter set forth.

STATEMENT

The amount of the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property in the County of Allegheny is Two Billion Four Hundred Thirty-four Million, Six Hundred Fifty-two Thousand, Five Hundred Fifty ($2,434,652,550.00) Dollars.
The amount of the existing debt of the County of Allegheny is Fifty-seven Million Nine Hundred Seven Thousand, Seven Hundred Forty-seven and 69-100 ($57,907,747.69) Dollars.
The total amount of all proposed increases in the debt of the County of Allegheny is Forty-three Million, Six Hundred Eighty-Thousand ($43,680,000.00) Dollars.
The percentage of the total amount of such proposed increases to the last preceding assessed valuation of the taxable property in the County of Allegheny is one and seven hundred ninety-five thousandths minus per centum (1.795%).
The amounts of the proposed increases of indebtedness of the County of Allegheny and the purposes for which the indebtedness is to be increased, are set forth in the following questions, which will be submitted to the electors of the county at said election, namely:

QUESTION NO. 1

Shall the indebtedness of the County of Allegheny be increased in the amount of Six Million Five Hundred Fifty Thousand ($6,550,000.00) Dollars, for the purpose of paying the cost, damage, and expense, including engineering expense, or Allegheny County's share thereof, of locating, relocating, opening, widening, extending, altering, building, improving, making, constructing, and reconstructing public roads and highways, in the county; and for the purpose of paying the county's share of the cost of the elimination of grade crossings; and for the elimination of dangerous curves on highways; and also for providing safety barriers on sharp curves and dangerous places on highways; and for the purpose of joining with municipalities in constructing and improving highways, and undertaking joint improvements in conjunction therewith; and for the further purpose of acquiring property and rights of property in connection with any of the foregoing improvements to the highways of Allegheny County?
The percentage of the increase in indebtedness set forth in said Question No. 1 to the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the County of Allegheny is two hundred sixty-nine thousandths plus of one per centum (.269+%).

QUESTION NO. 2

Shall the indebtedness of the County of Allegheny be increased in the amount of Ten Million Nine Hundred Thirty Thousand ($10,930,000.00) Dollars, for the purpose of paying the cost, damage and expense, including architectural and engineering expenses, or Allegheny County's share thereof, of locating, relocating, opening, widening, extending, altering, building, improving, making, constructing and reconstructing public roads and highways in the County, including the necessary bridges, tunnels, viaducts, culverts and connections, as part thereof, and the acquirement of property and rights of property in connection therewith, said highways and the amounts for each being as follows, viz:

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Gustave, the Great

THE DISTANT CITY OF NEW BABYLON HUMMED TODAY WITH THE NEWS THAT THE BROWN MILLIONS HAD BEEN INHERITED BY GUSTAVE BROWN THE YOUNGER, A MAN WHO WOULD BE GREATLY SURPRISED TO KNOW HOW MUCH OF HIS PRESENT GOOD FORTUNE IS DUE TO A TOO-HYPNOTIC HEALER.
HERE'S A PHOTO IN THE PAPER OF THAT BABY WHO INHERITED OLD BROWN'S MILLIONS. WHAT A DIZZY LOOKING CAKE-EATER HE IS! HIS FIRST THOUGHT SHOULD BE TO HIRE A FLEET OF PLASTIC SURGEONS TO SHINE UP HIS PAN. WHAT A BEEZER! IT LOOKS LIKE SOMETHING THAT WAS THROWN OUT THE BACK DOOR OF A VEGETABLE STORE.
LOOKS ARE NOT VERY IMPORTANT WHEN A MAN HAS FORTY OR FIFTY MILLIONS. HE'S A BACHELOR. EVERY SINGLE GIRL IN TOWN WILL SET HER CAP FOR HIM.
I MET HIM PERSONALLY TWO WEEKS AGO AT A DINNER. I SAT AS CLOSE TO HIM AS I AM TO YOU. HE LOOKS SILLY BUT DOUGH IS DOUGH.
I'D LIKE TO MEET HIM PERSONALLY TOO. THE WIFE IS GOING AWAY NEXT WEEK. WHY NOT THROW A REAL PARTY AND INVITE GUSTAVE, EH?
BUT, MOTHER I HAD A DREADFUL HEADACHE THE EVENING YOU WANTED ME TO MEET MR. BROWN. MY GOODNESS, FROM WHAT I SAW OF HIS PHOTO HE ISN'T MUCH TO LOOK AT AND—
WELL, DELICIA, YOU'RE CERTAINLY OLD ENOUGH TO REALIZE THAT A MILLIONAIRE DOESN'T USUALLY LOOK LIKE THOSE DRUG STORE COWBOYS WHO CLUTTER UP OUR PORCH SEVEN EVENINGS A WEEK.

ELLA CINDERS — His Sad Story

Mr. Cummings just told Ella that his fiance broke their engagement—
MISS MANNERS—WHO WAS MY FIANCEE UP TO LAST NIGHT—IS A VERY WEALTHY GIRL. SHE IS SOLE HEIRESS TO THE MORRIS MANNERS MILLIONS, ONE OF THE LARGEST FORTUNES IN THE COUNTRY—
SHE LOVED THE GAY WHIRL OF SOCIETY, BUT I HAD HOPED OUR MARRIAGE WOULD CHANGE THAT, AND MAKE HER APPRECIATE THE MORE SERIOUS THINGS OF LIFE, LIKE THE WORK I'M DOING HERE—
GRADUALLY I FOUND THAT SHE WAS NOT IN SYMPATHY WITH MY IDEALS—AND FINALLY SHE DEMANDED THAT I CHOOSE BETWEEN MY WORK AND HER—GIVE UP ONE OR THE OTHER—SO NOW WE ARE NO LONGER ENGAGED!
CHEER UP—THERE ARE OTHER FISH IN THE SEA, EVEN THOUGH THERE ARE TIMES WHEN THAT SOUNDS LIKE A FISH STORY! I APPRECIATE THE SERIOUS THINGS OF LIFE—I'M IN SYMPATHY WITH YOUR IDEALS!

THAT'S RIGHT, ELLA! Many a man that's been thrown down by one girl is caught on the first bounce by another!

REAL CONFESSIONS

The man who Miss Abercrombie was to blame for many of her subsequent heartaches. He was a buggie whip salesman from Detroit.

By MISS ABERCROMBIE.

HE WAS tall and perfectly groomed. His mustache was faultlessly barbered, and he wore a beautiful diamond horseshoe stick pin in his ascot tie. A cutaway coat, trousers and a hat completed his attire.

I noticed that he wore a hatband on which were printed the words, "Out for a good time." And he carried a small feather duster, together with a rubber "return ball," used to attract the attention of young girls.

He also carried confetti in his pockets, for it was Saturday afternoon and Spring.

"I beg your pardon," he said to me, as he smilingly hurled the rubber return ball, which was held captive by an elastic rubber string. The ball struck me—I can't remember just where, but I must have—

Why Women Marry Men

They Want to Hear All About Themselves

Women today are receiving higher salaries than ever before in their existence. The following letter is from a woman worker, who says that she "is making a pretty good living" and asks advice as to whether she should give up her position and her independence and get married. She writes:

"I have two married sisters—and I know that both envy me my freedom and easy life, if the truth were told.

"They have the worry and care of children, and they have to bear their husbands' worries as well as their husbands' children.

"When my work is done, it really is done. My time belongs to me, and I do what I like.

"Their work and worries are never ended. It is the house, or the bills, or the children. Always someone sick or something they need.

"I know you advise all women and all men to marry. But is not that just general good, moral advice?

"TWENTY-SIX YEARS OLD."

Young woman, WE DON'T CONTROL OURSELVES IN THIS WORLD.

If we DID manage ourselves entirely it would be a much colder, more selfish world than it is. Very likely marriages would be less numerous. People living alone and thinking of themselves only would be plentiful.

But men and women are put here on earth ALREADY WOUND UP.

We have to run in a certain way, obedient to our winding. And the Wisdom that winds us is very high and very pure wisdom.

Men and women marry because THEY HAVE TO. That's the real answer to your question.

A married woman with babies is a REAL woman. Others are NOT REAL.

What do you think of a man that does not work, and that does not want to work?

The woman that does not want to marry and to care for children is the wrong kind of a woman, as the idle man is the wrong kind of man.

We can tell you the answer to a much more difficult question than yours. The question is:

"Why do women consent to marry men who—as a rule—are not at all worthy of their good luck?"

Women marry men chiefly because THEY WANT TO KNOW ABOUT THEMSELVES.

Women have not the faculty of INTERPRETING themselves TO themselves.

A very plain little man in Shakespeare's day boasted that with ten minutes' start he could so interest a woman that the handsomest man in London could not attract her for a second.

What he said was true.

His secret—although he kept it to himself—was very simple.

He told the woman the things she wanted to know about HERSELF. When the handsomer man came along and wanted to talk about HIMSELF—he was not listened to.

Young men may remember for their guidance that the important thing is to study the young woman's character—ability, talents, fine qualities, etc.—and then give the young woman the results of the investigation.

You see, women cannot yet produce actual high-class work such as men produce. They have in them qualities far higher than men's qualities. But these only show in their sons. Lincoln's mother was greater than Lincoln. The creator is greater than the created. But she did not know it. She did not get the applause of the crowd, the votes of the millions.

What she needed, and probably never got, was the kind of man that would have understood her greatness and told her about it.

Nancy Hanks was her name, and she was about six feet tall and very homely.

But the right man could have told her that her big hands were proof of mental power. He could have told her that the fierce character which, perhaps, made neighbors afraid of her was a fine thing—an indication of power that her son would inherit. She would have liked such a man and gone a long way to please him.

Woman's real qualities are revealed ONLY IN HER CHILDREN.

The right kind of a woman is only REALLY happy when she has sons and daughters that tell her WHAT SHE IS, and that combine with her own good qualities the best qualities of the man she cares for.

Naturally a woman's liking for the admirer and future husband comes first.

While waiting for healthy, clear-eyed children to sing her praises and PROVE her worth, she likes to have around an intelligent man that can guess those qualities and describe them well.

Women marry because they must—nature makes plans and they are obeyed. They are not forced upon the UNFIT—which explains the existence of voluntary old maids and bachelors.

Our letter writer, Miss Twenty-Six, is taking notice, and, although she does not know it, there probably is not far from her the person who will marry her and make her working hours irregular.

She will be glad that happened when a small, wrinkled human being about 10 minutes old is handed to her, nicely washed, with a little white dress on—looking extremely ugly to all the rest of the world, but wonderfully beautiful to her.

Open Door

We'd Better Look Out Ere Japan Nails It Shut

Secretary Kellogg, while affirming, for the present, a "hands-off" policy with respect to Japan's encroachments in China, is careful to make two facts clear.

The United States has never recognized that Japan has sovereignty in Manchuria. In its eyes Manchuria is Chinese territory, subject to Chinese control, limited only by lawful concessions.

This country has had ample reason to know what Japanese concessions in Manchuria usually mean. Behind solemn pledges of an open door, they are vantage points for relentless crowding of other interests out.

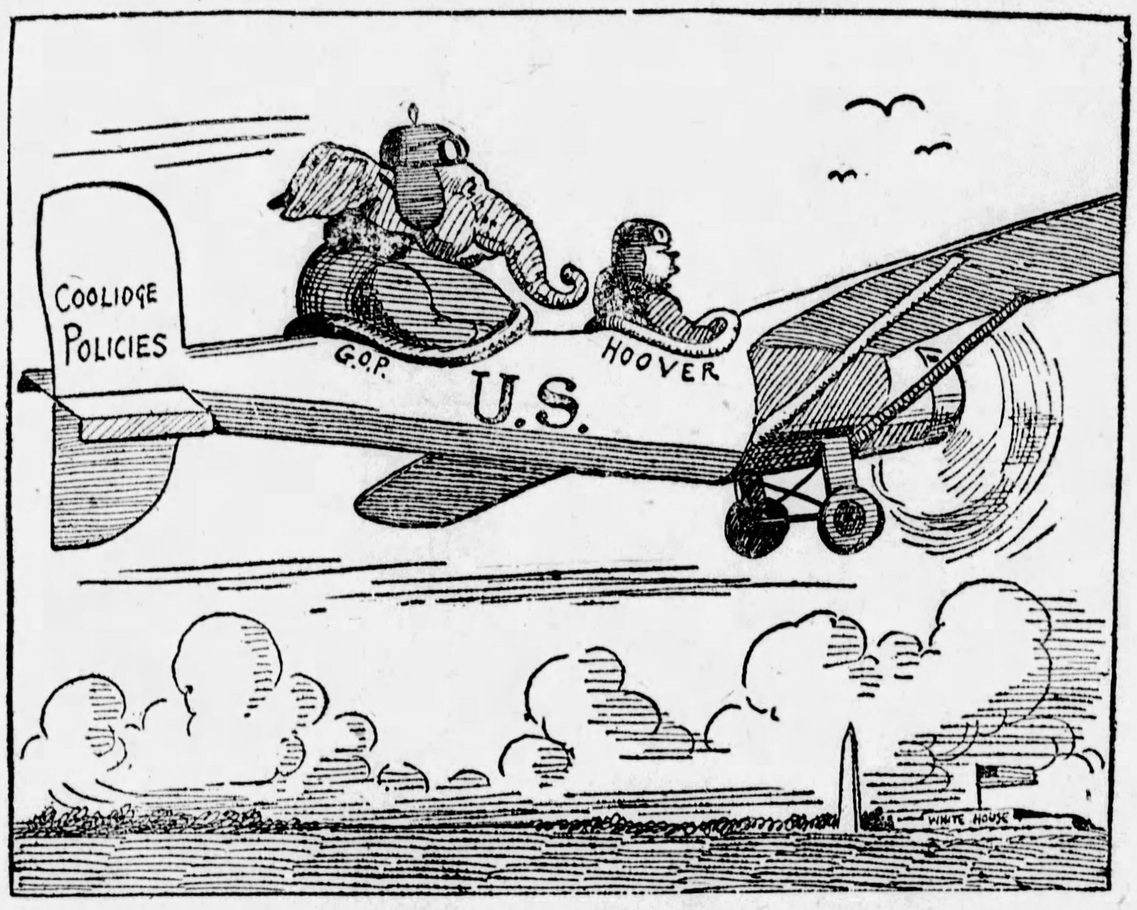
The second fact revealed by our Secretary of State is that Japan's action in declaring a closed season in Manchuria was taken without advance notice to Washington.

This is typically Japanese. Grab first, palaver afterward, is the philosophy of the Tokio feudalists.

Although our "hands" may be officially "off" just now, while China is in the throes of civil demoralization, they should be put on again with vigor the moment China gets a government which we can recognize.

Should Peking fall and any good semblance of Nationalist administration be set up in place of the nondescript rule now tottering there, that might be an appropriate moment for the United States to recognize the new regime and morally strengthen its hands in defense of Japanese aggression.

ALL SET! GIVE HER THE GUN!!



HERE'S the picture and here's the candidate, all nominated and everything, and here's some speed.

The air is clear, the sky serene, the elephant is safe as a child in its mother's arms, and the pilot knows his ship, the good U. S. Give this little elephant a hand. He has proved himself an intelligent picker.

As for the pilot, Hoover, watch him. He will show you some fancy flying, flying AT work and flying THROUGH it, canals, roads, dams, power and general fixing.

All that is his dish.

The grand old elephant has chosen a genuine pilot and knows it.

There will be another machine flying along pretty soon, headed for Houston, Texas. It will be a pretty race. "Give her the gun."

Garret P. Serviss Says:

The Birth of a Solar System

THE strange behavior of the new star, Nova Pictoris, in the southern constellation Pictor, continues to puzzle astronomers. In 1925 this star suddenly burst out with ten thousand times its former brightness. Before the outburst it had been far too faint to be glimpsed with the naked eye. It was then of the 12th magnitude—a telescopic object only. From this it jumped to the 2nd magnitude—the eye can easily see stars down to the 6th magnitude. It was like a sudden conflagration in the heavens.

After months the new star began to show a nebulous envelope, surrounding it like a faint ring, and slowly expanding. This has continued, but lately there have been seen three or four masses in the middle of the nebulous surroundings, as if the star had been split asunder.

This may be the birth of a solar system. Out of the scattered matter emanating from the exploded star planets may gradually be formed more or less like those revolving around our sun. This would fairly well accord with the "planetesimal theory" of the origin of our solar system. According to that theory there was a time in the far past when the sun existed without planets.

The consequence perhaps of the gravitational disturbance caused by some other massive body passing very near, it was disrupted. Immense streams of matter were hurled forth from it, and these under the influence of conflicting attractions were thrown into great spirals, which gradually condensed into discrete masses and particles. Where two or more such streams met knots were formed out of the knots by the continued infall of the scattered matter, planets were built up, one of which became our earth, while a much more formidable knot became the giant Jupiter, and so on—the eight principal planets and a thousand or more planetoids, or asteroids, being the final product of this catastrophic method of world birth—of supplying a lone sun with a family of satellite children.

There are certain seed capsules which, at a touch, suddenly fly to pieces and scatter their seeds around them. I do not mean to indicate here anything more than the picturesque suggestion of a resemblance. Nature is full of these superficial but very alluring accidental likeness. But it does seem strange for a sun to explode, like a pod!

If Nova Pictoris really has afforded to us a spectacle of planetary birth we could have no hope—nor hardly our race while it lasts of witnessing the maturing of those baby worlds.

There is an extraordinary disproportion between the very brief time required for the ejection of the material out of which the supposed new solar system is to be shaped, and the eons of evolution that, judging by the earth's history, must elapse before the formative process can be completed. A thousand million years, perhaps, before any life appears there! And perhaps there never will be life there. A distinguished astronomer has recently remarked that the very existence of a planet such as the earth, with so favorable a combination of physical and chemical conditions for the existence of life, is an extremely rare accident. "For what good a solar system then?" some may ask. Answering questions might be: For what good stars that cannot be seen? Or flowers that nobody can pick? Or sweet bird songs in a wilderness? The whole trouble is that our inherent egoism makes us judge everything, even in the remotest depths of the universe, solely from the human viewpoint.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Men Do Not Do It

"WHY do so many women talk about other women, slanderously, while men seldom do anything of this sort?" is a question asked.

And it is difficult to answer.

Women are supposed to be more kind-hearted than men.

They should be as loyal, woman to woman, but they are not, on the whole.

Among men there is a strong fraternal feeling.

The man who criticizes an absent man in a party of fellows is decidedly unpopular. Fortunately there are few such men.

Often women score other women with little apparent provocation.

Not often will men bring up unpleasant subjects at a social function.

There are few men who would deliberately try to hurt another man or woman when both are guests of a mutual friend.

But there are women who follow this practice, even at parties, where there is supposed to be only the most pleasant of contacts.

A desirable guest is one who avoids personalities in public.

Certainly, if you have the proper respect for those who entertain you, you will not indulge in angry or malicious remarks at a social function.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Justice

BLIND Justice, in whose shining scales
Each thought, each act is weighed,
Show me how, still, your law prevails,
Let me go undismayed.

Let me not fret at deeds I see
That darkly round me throng,
Teach me how strange your ways can be
And yet untouched by wrong.

Of elder gods, to none but you
I lift my ardent prayer;
Blind Justice, with your balance true,
Save me from all despair.

Though life's rare raptures fade and die,
Still, Goddess, make me see
How in your hands all issues lie,
Each deed is your decree.

Tales that are Told

A Question of Taste

"NOW that the New York stage has been purified," Secretary P. L. Strait, of the Big Brothers, said in Youngstown, "the New York audiences will be smaller. The city's taste, you see, has become vitiated.

"New York's taste reminds me of a story.

"A farmer paid a visit to his nephew in the big city, and every morning for breakfast they gave him two boiled eggs so stale that he could hardly get them down.

"He said on the last morning of his visit, as he salted and peppered his eggs to disguise their terrible age:

"'Well, you folks can brag and blow about the conveniences of city life all you've a mind to, but there's one thing you sure are short on, and that's fresh eggs. Now I'm going to send you a couple of dozen as soon as I get back home, and then you'll know what a good soft-boiled egg is really like.'

"So the farmer, on getting back, sent his nephew two dozen beautiful eggs fresh from the nest, and a few days afterwards his nephew's wife wrote him a letter of thanks.

"'Your country eggs are quite nice,' she said, 'but compared with ours they seem to have very little flavor.'"

Great Drawing Power

CHARLES HANSON TOWNE, poet, gave a dinner in Paris during his recent European tour, and one of the sensations of the dining room was the success of a very aged and decrepit man. Though his age was great, and though his decrepitude amounted almost to paralysis or palsy, a dozen of the most beautiful girls in Paris hovered about him continually.

"How that old man attracts the girls!" a woman said to Mr. Towne. "What can be the secret of his attraction, I wonder?"

"Why, don't you know?" the poet laughed. "He's a steel magnate."

Clean-Up Week

CHARLES PIKE SAWYER reports to us that Col. Edward Croft recently launched a campaign to clean up Governors Island and that one of the first to come under the order was a Negro with a rickety wagon and a spavined mule. He was told to do a little sprucing and the next day appeared in a much improved state. Even the mule was curried. The colonel looked the animal over carefully.

"Very good," he said, "but why don't you roach his mane?"

"All right, boss," came the reply, "I'll git some powder tomorrow."

The Worldly Mother

DR. WILLIAM MATHER LEWIS said at a luncheon in Philadelphia:

"Morally speaking, there's been a falling off since the war. Some blame the war for it, and I agree with them, but I blame the parents, too.

"A pretty girl said to her mother in an indignant voice:

"'Marry that beastly old millionaire! Why, I'd die first.'

"'Rot,' said her mother. 'He's nothing like as strong as he looks.'"

On the Links

TOMMY ARMOUR was taking tea on the veranda of a club when a notoriously poor player came up to him and said:

"I'm improving, Mr. Armour. Yes, I'm improving. I did the difficult hole yesterday in three."

The champion gave an incredulous and good-natured laugh.

"Three what?" he said. "Hours?"

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

THERE are rumors several poppy parlors have found lodgment amid bizarre setting in the topless towe of Manhattan's skyscrapers. These are not for the pasty addicts of the dingy Chinatown cellars, but for the rich who have the habit.

Thus, so high above the city's incoherent thunder, they may dream their purple dreams with little fear of the raiding ax. It has been estimated there are some 20,000 pipe smokers in Greater New York, and a large percentage are reputed to be those reared in culture.

Young thrill seekers dallying along the primrose path of Broadway are frequent among those who develop the "yen." Late and hectic parties often burn emotions to such a low ebb that "trying it once just for fun" reaps its toll.

It is reported two recent debutantes are now in sanitariums in the effort to be freed of the habit the underworld calls "knocking the gong around." It used to be narcotic agents could detect an opium addict by the sickly white pallor indulgence caused.

But today that is difficult. Artificial tanning will produce the bronze of an autumn leaf. The confirmed opium addict rarely drinks intoxicating liquor. A combination of the two results in violent nausea. The addict after a spree is consumed by the "shakes" and a ravaging thirst for water.

Broadway points an accusing finger at several celebrities as being among those who hit the pipe, yet it is probable this is mere gossip. Those who indulge are so clever in concealing their vice that they have been able to fool doctors for years.

The low type of the speakeasy and night club are hang-outs for cicerones of the hop bazars. Usually addicts themselves, they are able to throw out conversational "feelers" for prospective patrons. Prices range from $10 in the dives to $150 a night in the gilded, salons.

Race track touts are said to be the easiest of all prey to opium addiction. Eighty per cent of them are reputed users of some sort of drug. The gangster rarely uses opium. He whips up courage with cocaine.

Four plays to be unveiled on Broadway this next season were turned out by active New York newspapermen. Two smashing hits of last season were written by members of the same guild. It can no longer be said with a hoot that every newspaperman tries to write a play. They now do it, hooray! and successfully.

The charge that the reporter has never been accurately portrayed on the stage was also disproved last season, when two in the same play ran so true to type that you could almost hear the roar of the city room when they talked over the telephone to their offices. Next season Russell Crouse, a real reporter, is scheduled to take a reportorial role in a play by a newspaperman. He should be able to lend a distinct histrionic charm. For no matter how much they deny the soft impeachment, most newspapermen are pretty much actors. In fact a bunch of them grouped in front of the Lambs would not look at all out of place. They simulate the same nonchalance and worldly sophistication, as well as being gifted with similar vanities. The indefinable qualitis that made the actor human and likeable will be found in the average reporter.

The first reporter to strike pay dirt in playwrighting in the past decade is Eugene Walter, who immediately, actor-like, blossomed forth with spats, cane, tweedy things and gaudy motor cars. The legend grew that he spent his first year sleeping on benches in public parks, while hawking plays along the Rialto. The truth is that, like all good reporters, he always had a job, and the nearest he came to a park bench was to stop there now and then to puff a good cigar.

* * *

Find the reporter who is two jumps ahead of the sheriff in New York and you will probably find he has climbed into spats just like an actor.

Capital Punishment

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

The League to Abolish Capital Punishment, a national organization, with offices in New York, sends out a pamphlet giving succinctly the reasons for its existence.

These reasons cannot be too often stated, as the objection to capital punishment is not a mere sentimental one, but is based upon fact, results and science.

The object of any punishment at all is two-fold.

First, to see that the offender shall not be guilty of a similar offense and, secondly, to deter others from imitating him. It stands to reason that when a man has been hanged it does him no good, while, in the second place, attention is called to the fact that as a matter of statistics capital punishment is not a deterrent. In states and countries which have already abolished the death penalty murder has not increased. In most of them it has decreased. This is not sentiment. It is cold fact.

Secondly, capital punishment is irrevocable. There have been cases of the execution of innocent men. No punishment should be such that it cannot be reversed in case the victim is found to be innocent.

Third, more and more juries refuse to convict in first degree murder cases, because they object to the penalty. Thus instead of protecting society it endangers it. It allows the guilty to go free simply because it is hard to find 12 persons who want to kill a man. In states which have abolished capital punishment there is a higher percentage of convictions.

Fourth, the death penalty advertises murder. It is good newspaper copy and the psychological effect of its publicity is demoralizing.

Fifth, a second death cannot undo the first, and killing a man for a crime inflicts shame and suffering on his innocent relatives, at the same time merely eating the desire for vengeance on the part of the victim's friends.

Sixth, it demoralizes prison officials and prison inmates. The majority of the prison wardens of the United States and almost all modern penologists are against the death penalty.

Seventh, somehow our fundamental belief is in the sanctity of human life and we will never get over a feeling of repulsion when the states imitates the murderer.

Eighth, many states already have abolished capital punishment, to wit:

Maine, Rhode Island, Michigan, Kansas, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

Many countries have abolished it. Portugual, Holland, Italy, Norway, Austria, Sweden, Latvia, Esthonia, Switzerland (15 cantons), Finland, Denmark, Belgium, Brazil, Venezuela, Argentina, Ecuador, Peru, Uruguay, Colombia, Honduras and Mexico (3 states).

Does the United States want to be the last?

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD.

TODAY'S divorces seem to be concerned mostly with women who talk too much and men who have found "a new interest."

F. R. Putnam had to sleep in his office in the daytime, he says, because his wife "jawed him" all night. When he wanted to be happy, and turned on sprightly radio music, she insisted upon getting gospel hymns.

Mr. Putnam, so the divorce bill charges, found May Zahn better company.

"You know," says Mr. Putnam, "the more she tried to reform me, the more sinful I became."

No woman ever lost a man by approving of him.

If women who insist upon talking all the time, would occasionally say something agreeable—that is, tell the men how good they are, how charming, how irresistible, the men not only would stay at home, but they would grow ears like fans, all bent for listening.

Criticism is a fine thing, but there is never an instance where both parties enjoy it.

Hoboken, N. J., has a citizen who says his wife has nagged him for 25 years. The only way he could live with her, was not to speak to her, or in other words, not answer back. Now she has taken him to court for not speaking to her.

Gosh ding it, a Solomon couldn't advise that fellow, but a judge will try.

Los Angeles comes forth with a woman whose husband washed her mouth out with soap, so she wouldn't say cross words. And what did she do?

Divorced him.

The wives win, no matter what the battle. And as for trying to stop them from talking, you might as well try to push Niagara back up on the shelf where it comes from. The only remedy is to influence what they say.

You try it!

Isn't It So?

This season's buds may be next season's wall flowers.

It's a poor dog that can't make a man mad by biting him.

If you don't believe that the world is growing worse ask the oldest inhabitant.

Most things are governed by the law of supply and demand, with the possible exception of making mistakes.

The man who claims to be seeking new fields for his genius usually is looking for a place where he isn't so well known.

Up in Smoke

A MILLION dollars worth of illicit narcotics, fruits of a year's nabbing in and around New York, have been burned at police headquarters.

One fire loss the public will applaud, while also giving a hand to the vigilance of the detectors.

LISTEN, WORLD! ELSIE ROBINSON Says: They Want to Know

THEY want to know "the facts of life."

No, they're not horrid, vulgar, little brats, snooping around for forbidden secrets. They're the Girl Reserves of California, and they presented their petition to the Young Women's Christian Association, recently in convention at Sacramento.

Young women from Christian homes, the finest mothers of tomorrow, clamoring for some information about their job—and NOT GETTING IT.

"Though the discussion grew agitated," says the report, "no action was taken."

Classes in domestic science were being arranged, classes in current events, politics, interior decoration, journalism, dancing, swimming, beauty courses, every conceivable occupation which might develop a young woman's life save that one occupation for which she was primarily made and in which she is fundamentally interested, the occupation of motherhood. Concerning that occupation no information is listed either in the homes from which they came, nor in the Y. W. C. A., nor in the churches they attended, nor the common schools. And any public discussion of it is regarded as indelicate.

"Why don't the mothers tell them?"

The Girl Reserves had an emphatic answer to that.

"Our mothers are too reticent," they said. "They get all fussed if we ask about it and they make us fussed, too. A girl can't talk to her mother about things like that."

They could have said more. Their mothers are not only "too reticent" to discuss sex—they are also too ignorant.

The writer recently had an amazing proof of this fact. I was scheduled to give a series of talks before various Parent-Teacher associations. The representative mothers of the city were in those audiences, intelligent, earnest women, ambitious for their families and their homes. At every meeting, the question of sex education came up and whenever it did there was a visible wave of disapproval. They did not believe that sex instruction should be given in schools and they frankly said so.

"But where should it be given?"

"In the homes!"

"All right—who's going to give it? Have any of you sufficient knowledge to give correct instruction in these matters? Can you even draw a simple but accurate outline of the organs of the human body and describe their functions?"

They could not. Out of the hundreds of women addressed there were only about six who had taken nursing courses, who could have told a girl the true story of sex and birth. Yet these were educated women, many of them college graduates.

But did this fact appall them? Far from it. They obviously felt that it was quite right for ladies to be ignorant of such matters and were frankly shocked that they should have been discussed in a Parent-Teacher meeting.

Presumably, then, a "nice girl" remains uninstructed until she is married. But most young husbands are as grossly ignorant as their young wives. Such information as they have is distorted with superstition and vulgarity. Yet when Judge Lindsey pleads for compulsory sex education and medical examination before marriage he is howled down!

As a matter of fact, even the "nicest" girls do not wait to ask their husbands unless they're dummies. Curosity rises in the developing young human as naturally as sap rises in a tree. And if mamma won't answer them, their playmates will. So the holiest lesson of life is imparted in necking parties. Then we wonder why our children "don't confide in us and treat us with respect!"
